Cadets Paint Plane Red, But Why?

It's spring and a young man's fancy naturally turns to a variety of areas.

But as to where it is turning at the Air Force Academy, the word is button down your cockpits and maintain strict radio silence.

This is being carried out by the grins on the faces of members of the cadet class of 1966—who are about to be recognized as fellow members — are broadcasting loud and clear if you look closely enough.

What's all the mystery? Well, no one is talking.

But, if you just happened to be on the honor court and you just happened to be looking in a certain direction, you just might see a group of cadets scrambling over an F-106 fighter plane.

If you looked real close you just might see them armed with paint scrapers and wire brushes.

And if you thought about it, you just might think that it is unusual for a plane such as this to differ from its sisters by having a bright red nose and a bright red tail section.

And if you put the paint scrapers together with the grins of the cadets and the unusual color scheme of the plane, you just might come up with spring when a young man's fancy turns away from the drab colors of school books to bright exterior decoration.

And you can imagine a red-tailed aircraft shaking his head and thinking, "Cadets will be boys, but bright red...."

Wheat Production In Colorado Cut By Heat, Drought

FORT COLLINS (AP)—Drought, insects, wind and unusually high temperatures have destroyed most of the wheat crop in southeastern Colorado, the Colorado State University Extension Service reported Friday.

The service said that it's still possible to have a wheat crop in northeastern and east central Colorado if there's some rain soon.

Irrigation ditches range from dry to near normal, but future supplies are reported questionable even where water is running now.

The service said municipalities (Turn to Page 7, Column 4)

LEVEL PEAK TOP—Leveling a site for the proposed $440,595 summit house atop Pikes Peak is progressing, but some of the protruding granite boulders seem to be anchored way down deep in the mountain. At least three more feet of this rocky upper crust has to be removed near the water tank at right, and the Pikes Peak Highway Patrol station wagon. Rock from the north end of the site has already been bulldozed off the top and gravel added. The leveling is being done at night under lights. There is one floodlight at the top left of the water tower. Gravel being used for fill is being hauled to the summit at night from a gravel pit at Glen Cove. W. E. Ross Construction Company, Denver, is general contractor on the project.

Soldier Stays at Post On Live-Fire Battlefield

YAKIMA, Wash. (AP)—A By Wednesday morning nobody youthful private spent 11 hours in the impact area of a firing exercise, with live ammunition and napalm bombs falling about him, the Army reported Friday. He escaped injury.

The soldier, Pvt. Daniel J. Arthur, 17, of Los Angeles, was taking part in Exercise Coulee Crest, an Air Force-Army maneuver being conducted on a million-acre "battleground" in central Washington.

A newsmen asked Adams what would happen to the private.

"Well," said the four-star general, "he could be in my outfit any time."

Cascade Man Says He Won't Pay Fine In Woodland Park

A Cascade man was fined $25 by Judge Hazel Radach in Woodland Park Friday for conducting business in the Woodland Park town limits without a license, according to Brian J. Mullett, the town attorney.

The offense occurred on May 8 when Bill Bull, 42, Box 248, Cascade, was issued a summons for doing plumbing work in Woodland Park in violation of an ordinance which requires licensing of all people conducting business in the town, Mullett said.

Bull, who was given ten days in which to appeal to a higher court says he will never pay the fine and that the ordinance is unconstitutional. Bull is without an attorney and will not appeal the decision, he said.

According to Mullett, if Bull does not pay the fine by May 21, he could be arrested and sent to jail for 90 days or have his property attached.

Soviets Will Be Difficult Rest of Year, Official Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—A high State Department official predicted Friday that a current Kremlin foreign policy appraisal will result in a Soviet decision to push ahead with Communist expansion policies abroad.

The official, who spoke to newsmen under rules forbidding use of his name, expressed doubt that the present Soviet leadership would adopt an alternative policy of concentrating on furthering the goals of the Russian Revolution within Russia.

Instead, he said, he expects the Kremlin to conclude that it has not been moving forward very rapidly in the achievement of Communist revolutionary aims worldwide. On balance, he pre-

JFK-Pearson Report Progress In Opening Talks

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy and visiting Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson of Canada tackled the toughest problems on their two-day conference agenda Friday and later reported progress on seven major issues.

Following their first 3½ hours of talks, Kennedy and Pearson discussed their meeting with newsmen, complimented each other on the friendly atmosphere of their discussions and agreed fully, to quote Kennedy, that "progress was made on all matters."

Pearson cited seven issues which were canvassed in his opening meeting with the President at Kennedy's ocean front summer home here.

He listed them as:

1. The question of whether Canada will agree to arm two Bomarc missile bases in that country.

Wilson Predicts Macmillan Defeat

LONDON (AP)—Labor Party Leader Harold Wilson Friday hailed sweeping Laborite gains in borough and urban council elections across Britain as clear notice for Prime Minister Harold Macmillan's Conservative government to quit.

Judge Enoch pointed out that "The Labor party is riding high," Wilson told a news conference in Southampton. He said that if Macmillan had dissolved Parliament now—extremely unlikely—he would face certain defeat at the polls.

"But the longer he waits the more serious it will be for the country because... this government is living on borrowed time."

The life of the present Parliament runs to October 1964, but it is the prime minister's privilege to call a new election any time he believes he can win a new mandate for his party. Macmillan went to his country home at Chequers to study the election results.

Of 297 borough council seats at stake, the Conservatives counted a net loss of 550 seats. The Labor party had a net gain of 544, and the Liberal party 80.

Bosch Asks OAS Probe Haiti Crimes

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP)—President Juan Bosch called on the Organization of American States Friday to investigate his charges that President Francois Duvalier's Haitian regime violates human rights and international law.

In urging the OAS to expand its investigation of conditions in Haiti beyond what is now planned, Bosch told a news conference: "I consider that the OAS must go to the core of the problem—the violation of human rights and international law."

Bosch repeatedly referred to Duvalier as a madman, a charge he first made publicly in a radio-television address Tuesday night when he called Duvalier both a madman and a tyrant.

Medical Society Recommends More Funds for Care of Aged

Ross Says State Aged Fund Harmed By Government

Former County Commissioner Hugh J. Ross laid the blame for the depleted state old age medical care program on government control and "politicians (who) decided to get their hands on this fruitful source of money."

Ross made the accusations at a hearing before the State Board of Public Welfare in Denver to determine what can be done to aid the program which faces a deficit in the next fiscal year.

Some officials felt that a cut in the aid under the program would be necessary unless an additional source of income is found. Ross said he has heard rumors that the additional costs would be passed on to the county governmental units.

He pointed out that the state has set a $10 million limit for the medical care program. At least $20 million additional comes to the fund each year, but this spill-over has been designated to go into the general fund.

"In the first place, the original old age pension amendment was enacted to provide the basic minimum needs for pensioners," Ross said. "But when the pension fund kept growing because of the state's growth, the politicians decided to get their hands on this"

Governor Says Allott Approves Favorite Son Role

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Gov. John Love of Colorado told a news conference Friday Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., is "receptive" to being a favorite son candidate for the GOP presidential nomination next year.

Love first reported he was backing Allott for the nomination in an interview with UPI Thursday. But he said then he had not discussed it with the senator.

"I talked with him about it last night, and he was receptive," Love said. The two attended a GOP fund-raising dinner in honor of Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

The governor also said he "expected" Allott's name to be presented to the Republican National Convention as a candidate. This seemed to remove the Allott candidacy from the vote-swapping or mere action-delaying category.

"I have been asked repeatedly what might be expected from the Republican party in Colorado relative to the approaching presidential election year. Obviously, I cannot speak for our entire party, but..."

"Insofar as I am personally concerned, by virtue of his long and dedicated service to the people of Colorado and to the nation because he is a man who has no peer in understanding the problem"

Airman Is Killed By Viet Nam Fire

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (UPI)—A U.S. Air Force medic was killed by Communist ground fire Friday while on a helicopter rescue mission to evacuate wounded Vietnamese soldiers.

Another U.S. medic and a Vietnamese officer were wounded by the guerrillas' small arms fire, which riddled the helicopter, U.S. military sources said.

The Americans were not identified pending notification of their relatives. The medic's death brought to 35 the number of Americans killed in action since the U.S. intervention here began in 1961, and to 84 the number killed from all causes.

The shooting took place between Saigon and Bat Cat Village, about 30 miles to the northwest, where Vietnamese troops fought a battle against guerrilla forces after an ambush.

Liu Talks With Ho In North Viet Nam

TOKYO (AP)—Red China's President Liu Shao-chi was an honored visitor Friday in Hanoi, capital of Communist North Viet Nam.

A New China News Agency broadcast said the Red Chinese leader had intimate, warm, and cordial talks with President Ho Chi Minh.

The agency reported 200,000 persons had cheered and applauded the two on their six-mile drive in from the airport.

Welfare Board Refuses to Name Cheating Firms

DENVER (AP)—The Colorado Welfare Board refused Friday to name a half dozen drugstores and one nursing home in the state which it was told last month had raised drug costs under the medical care act for old age pensioners.

The board was challenged to name the guilty groups by Henry Wilson of Cortez, president of the Colorado Pharmaceutical Association, and Hubert D. Henry, its attorney.

They said that all drugstores and nursing homes would be under a cloud so long as the violators were unidentified.

George Saunders, head of the welfare board, replied that "investigation by this department has just begun. To name people before the investigation is complete would be very unfair to them and very dangerous for us. We are not going to try to keep anybody's name out of the paper that belongs in the paper."

Wilson said the pharmaceutical association, under new rules, will have power to discipline members which violated regulations and ethical practices.

Henry, in presenting the pharmacists' position asked that "if any misconduct has been engaged in which is in violation of statute or the rules and regulations... (that) evidence of such misconduct be delivered to the proper officers for appropriate disciplinary action."

Assessor Says Taxpayers Not Making Reports

Hundreds of taxpayers who hold income producing property in El Paso County have failed to file their schedule of personal property tax for 1963, according to Field W. Phelps, county assessor.

Phelps said Friday that taxpayers are obliged each year to complete and return the form to his office in the County Office Building before May 1.

The personal property tax is applicable to all people in the county who hold income producing property including furnishings and equipment in a residential or business unit.

All items of machinery and equipment, furniture and fixtures must be listed on the schedule. Mounted equipment and attachments, upon which no Specific Ownership Tax has been paid, must be listed, according to Phelps.

Failure to comply with law related to filing the return will result in the property owner being subjected to an assessment made by the county assessor based on the information he has obtainable.

Phelps said his office staff will begin a campaign to contact all delinquent filers Monday and that they hope to notify each property holder either by telephone or mail that their tax schedule is past due.

Marines Wait Near Haiti to Rescue American Citizens

ABOARD THE AIRCRAFT CARRIER BOXER, Off Haiti (UPI)—Battle-ready Marines are prepared to cover the evacuation of U.S. nationals from Haiti if the situation there gets "sticky," or if American lives are endangered, Capt. Frank W. Vannoy said Friday.

Vannoy is commander of Amphibious Squadron 10, U.S. Navy, which includes the Boxer and seven other American warships maneuvering off the Haitian coast.

The task force includes a 2,000-man Marine detachment.

Vannoy told correspondents aboard the Boxer he hoped there would be no need for military action. But he said he could quickly land Marines in Haiti — "on the front doorstep of the American Embassy, if necessary" — aboard helicopters.

"Our job is to support the U.S. ambassador in the evacuation, and in his negotiations (with Haiti)," Vannoy said. He said he was in constant touch "through higher channels" with the ambassador and American military officers still in Haiti.

Army Announces Guard Streamlining Is Complete

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Army announced Friday its streamlining of the National Guard and Reserve was completed May 1, a month ahead of schedule.

The reorganization plan at one time aroused considerable opposition from state governors and Guard and Reserve groups because it involved elimination of eight Guard and Reserve infantry divisions and the dropping of more than 730 out-of-date units.

The Army said 23 Army National Guard divisions and six Reserve divisions are now completely reorganized into a new structure based on battalions of 750 men.

"The realignment of Army Reserve components is expected to result in a more ready military force," the Army said, claiming the new structure provides greater combat flexibility.

Man Waves Gun In Bar Argument, Winds Up In Jail

Timothy J. Manning, 33, of Ft. Carson, was booked into county jail late Friday afternoon, and shortly after William Mitchell of 22 Pike View Village signed a complaint against him alleging assault with a deadly weapon.

Deputy Sheriff Charles Dietsche reported he received a call from the Las Vegas Club, 711 E. Las Vegas St., saying a man had pulled a gun on another.

Dietsche and Deputy Sheriff Jack Ames went to the scene and learned two men, one of them subsequently found to be Manning, had already left in a car.

Ames followed and finally he and Bob Zabriske of the Fountain Police stopped the pair two miles north of Fountain. One of the men was Robert Pulse who was released. Manning had 40 rounds of .22 caliber long rifle ammunition in his possession. A .22 caliber single shot gun was found under the seat.

Sheriff Earl L. Sullivan and Under-Sheriff H. Don Smith then arrived and Manning was taken to county jail.

Further investigation showed Mitchell, the complaining witness, had gone with Myrtle L. Allison, Pulse and Manning to the club. An argument ensued and Manning, the report says, backed up against the wall and pulled the gun. Pulse attempted to reason with him the deputy said, but all the while Manning kept waving the gun around.

Manning finally left and Pulse followed him and the pair were picked up a short time later.

Loveland Faces Strike of Doctors

LOVELAND (AP)—Officials at Loveland Memorial Hospital issued a statement late Friday promising full services at the institution despite a threatened walkout of physicians.

Staff doctors — reported 14 — said Friday they would cease practicing at the hospital. The staff, headed by Dr. Melvin Wirz, had asked that the hospital administrator, William K. Olson, be dismissed.

Thursday night the advisory board of the hospital rescinded a previous request that Olson quit his job.

The hospital has experienced a personnel crisis with about 30 nurses submitting resignations.

In Friday's action, the doctors said after a meeting that they would refer no more patients to the hospital, except in an emergency, but would continue the treatment of patients already admitted.

CC Suspends Six Students For Panty Raid

Six Colorado College students including star tennis player Russ Speery, were suspended indefinitely Friday as a result of a riot and panty raid staged by approximately 400 students Thursday night.

Juan Reid, dean of men and an unidentified faculty member were roughed up and caught in a cross-fire of water from hoses when they tried to break up the riot, a CC official said. Neither man was seriously injured.

According to reports filtering from the local campus, rumors of the riots began circulating around dinner time.

CC officials, including Dean Reid got wind of the impending panty raid and moved to head it off.

Meanwhile, the crowd had grown to more than 400 students and they stormed Bemis Hall shouting for panties.

The dean, flanked by several Canadian hockey players, got to the door of the dormitory before the first of the mob reached there. With the aid of the players he attempted to halt the flow of students but according to reports, was pushed aside.

The students flowed into the (Turn to Page 7, Column 7)

Prevention of Cruelty To Straw Men

Possibly someone who is interested in forming unique and exciting organizations ought to consider the advisability of setting up an outfit for the prevention of cruelty to straw men.

Propagandists, of whatever complexion politically speaking, are prone to see all manner of evil in their opponents. And seeing this evil, they clutch at every ideological straw blown their way by the winds of providence. When there is sufficient straw on hand, they erect a straw man and proceed to torture and worry the poor thing until they have quite convinced everyone that the straw man is the real thing.

We recall an instance of this a number of years ago. A public speaker, commenting on the prevalence of dogs in the city where he was visiting, observed that in his view people ought not to be spending their money and attention on dogs when there were so many orphans in need of foster parents. To make his point, he climaxed this observation by saying that the community would have been better off if it put all the dogs to death and gave life to the orphans.

It was a pat phrase and the propagandist leaped on it.

A newspaper story appeared that Mr. Blank, the speaker, wanted everyone in town to put his pet dog to death. This was expanded by another writer, who suggested that while the dogs were being destroyed, certainly cats, parrots, goldfish, canaries and other pets of any kind ought not to be overlooked.

Actually, the speaker was wholly disinterested in the fate of dogs, cats or parakeets. His concern was with orphans. But as a result of his offhand remark and the appearance of the propagandist who delight in building straw men and then torturing them to death, the poor fellow was hard put to explain his comments.

The Single View

Egotism is the art of accepting your own view of your own virtues without the amelioration of your neighbor's view of your vices.

The Uses of Slander

What is that element in the human equation that drives normally civilized and decent men to indulge in lies and slander?

Christian theology gives the explanation that man is innately sinful, i.e., he has an inborn tendency to do the wrong thing when he knows the right thing. Some moralists, on the other hand, contend that it is a reversion to the promptings of the lower animals, an absence of humanity.

We have all known of instances when incidents have been enlarged upon, when words have been tortured as well as manufactured in order to serve the purpose of an individual or organization. The whole thing starts on some valid and honest point but in order to dramatize and sensationalize, the story ends in a series of lies in order to lend "interest" to an otherwise average subject.

The motive behind such actions? They help "sell" ... at least in the short run.

We have also all had the experience of knowing individuals who take a perverse delight in repeating slander, feeling immunity for the action because an "authority" is used as a source. But, as Rose Wilder Lane has pointed out, it is just as damaging to repeat a lie as to originate it.

The reputation of slander is rather difficult because denials and discussion of the subject tend to dignity and give credence. However, the slanderer in the long run damages himself for it is contrary to man's nature that he can, with impunity, set himself apart from the workings of the natural order that dictate a violence to the spirit in the act of bearing false witness.

Hence, the uses of slander are reduced to the same category of human actions that prompt all base men, desperate to accomplish an end by whatever means at hand.

Rhyme—And Reason

By RUFUS L. PORTER
CUSSING TIME
When Spring has sprung and I relax
After paying my income tax,
I take my abacus from the shelf
And for a while amuse myself
Recalling every dime and cent
And figuring where my dollars went.

They went to Uncle Sam. I know. I helplessly stood and watched them go.
But Uncle doesn't keep them, see. He spends them all for you and me.
For our "protection" Uncle sends Billions to his foes and friends.
Around the world our substance goes.
And where it stops our Uncle knows.
At least he likes to think he's sure.
It keeps his image bright and pure.
Then let our taxes outward roam.
What matter if we're broke at home?

At home our Uncle protects us too.
He goes in debt for me and you.
The debt is for posterity.
For Uncle's pets the subsidy.
But what about the rest of us?
We pay, but we're allowed to cuss.

"Things are looking up," said. "Business is prospering, profits are good, great new expansion programs are being proposed by the major industries, government spending, at all levels, is on the rise and it looks as though we are in for a mild boom for the next year or two, at least."

"How come you equate government spending with business and industry spending?" asked Adam Lyre.

"Well," I said, "a dollar doesn't care who spends it. It works just as hard for one man or group as it does for another. Big government spending creates many jobs, cuts down on unemployment, adds to the general good of the community and helps bring on an era of all around prosperity."

"You couldn't be more wrong if you tried," said Adam. "Don't you know that the government has to rob you and me and everybody else to get its dollars? It spends so lavishly? Don't you know that at least 33 per cent of every dollar the government thus acquires is charged off to the collection and handing of the same?"

Don't you realize that we would all have much more money of our own to invest in business, in industry, in big expansion projects if it wasn't for the government's meddling in and doing the things we could do better and cheaper for ourselves?"

"But," I said, "look at all the good the government does with the money it spends. Look at the big power dams that create cheap electricity for industries and domestic uses. And what about the government housing programs and the urban renewal projects? Why, the government does real big things for all of us."

"Yeah," said Adam, "and taxes go up every year. We pay for all that besides paying an ever growing bunch of hungry politicians and bureaucrats who fatten on our taxes. Sure they can sell cheap power, they don't have to make it pay. They sock us every day for the deficits they run up on all their projects. They tax everybody everywhere so they can furnish cheap things for a few here and there. Then they spend millions more of our money telling us what a whopping success all their big failures are, but that's their big failure, they don't think they'd be one to fall for their malarky."

"But private enterprise couldn't build all those huge dams and things," I said.
"Private enterprise builds them all the same," Adam said. "They good."

FANCY FOOT WORK

Three Strikes and Out

By GEORGE BOARDMAN, Ph.D.

The average politician hoards a few broad jokes and hauls them out from time to time when he notices an audience is obviously bored with his attempts to say nothing in several thousand words. Inevitably, the jokes are as tiresome as the speech. I suppose politicians follow an unwritten rule which prohibits the use of the many ridiculous statements of colleagues who do not intend to be funny.

There's a controversy in Wisconsin.

A state assemblyman has concerned himself with a situation which is typically involved with the oddities of socialism. Apparently a good many females in Wisconsin find themselves awaiting a visit from the stork, before they acquire a lawfully identifiable husband. The assemblyman seems to feel that every Wisconsin girl is entitled to a couple of mistakes. He's willing to have the taxpayers of his state provide a little aid and comfort and continuing welfare does for have all the equipment and they build 'em on contract for the government. They could do it on their own and do a better job for a great deal less money and make more for themselves in the bargain. And if the dams belonged to private operators they would have to pay taxes, huge taxes. But they wouldn't be as huge as they are today when they have to help pay the deficits the government runs up by competing with them.

"To spend one dollar where it makes a showing and brings in votes, the politicians generally collect three or four from us and then keep on collecting every year to pay the deficits. Like the old saying, 'It ain't the first cost, it's the upkeep.'"

"A dollar spent by the government, in any manner outside of pure protection, means that some body was robbed in the first place and will continue to be robbed from now on. And it's even worse when the government goes into business and competes with us taxpayers on unfair and unequal terms and then we have to make up its losses."

"Government spending, at its best, is an evil. At its worst, and that's the way we're getting it, it's downright criminal. Don't ever compare government spending with private enterprise spending again in my presence. The former is as bad as the latter is all the same," Adam said. "They good."

The American Way The Key to Success

By TOM ANDERSON

Doctor Harry Emerson Fosdick tells of a Midwestern university which unveiled a memorial tablet to one of its alumni — an undistinguished man. As an undergraduate, he had taken part in many activities, but he was never president of anything. For four years he went out for football, but he had never played on the first team. His scholastic average was in the B's. During World War I, he served in a minor capacity in a medical unit and one day met his death trying to help a wounded man under fire. The French government posthumously honored him, and then his Alma Mater unveiled a tablet in his honor which read: "He played four years on the scrubs — he never quit."

TRYING
You don't have to win to make a contribution. Most successful people have had and will have many failures. It's not how many times you fail that counts; it's how many times you succeed. It's not how many times you're knocked down, but how many times you get up. The only disgrace is not to fail, but not to try.

If the world is better because of you, you are a success; if it's worse because of you, you are a failure.
Every normal person wants to be popular. Ranking next to the desire to live and the sex urge, is the desire to be appreciated. But, appreciated for what? For lacking the morality to buck the crowd when the crowd is headed toward the precipice? For lacking the courage to stand for what is right, against the mob? Pontius Pilate, to be popular, let the mob kill their best friend. Columbus defied his crew and refused to turn back, but he discovered a new world.

CONVICTIONS
Robert E. Lee refused command of the Union Army to do his duty as he saw it to Virginia and his people, although he knew from the beginning it was a lost cause. Moses took the hard road and died in the wilderness, but God gave him a mountaintop to die on. He will remain there forever.

Henry Clay said he'd rather be right than president. What can be wrong with being right? Those of us who're called "rightists" as are proud we're not "wrongists" as are the collectivists.

Truth outranks togetherness. The majority is not always right. One with God is a majority.

Recognize and respect the rights of others. Only free and sovereign individuals can maintain self respect. If you do not have self respect, then you must have self contempt. Most of us have more trouble with ourselves than with any other person we ever meet.

SELF-APPRAISAL
Be the first to see and admit your mistakes. Make it a practice not to repeat the same ones. Respect the advice of your elders and profit by their mistakes. One of the greatest failures of every generation is that it refuses to read the minutes of the last meeting.

One of your most precious possessions is time. It's criminal to waste it. You'll never live this moment again. In Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," Charles Darnay stands in his cell waiting to be guillotined. As he hears each stroke of the clock, he says to himself with awesome solemnity, "Ten o'clock — gone forever; eleven o'clock — gone forever; twelve o'clock — gone forever."

Each toll of the bell rushed him to his grave. In a different way, so goes it with all of us. So little time, and so much to do. Do it — now! The sands are running constantly. Be a "clock watcher" of the sands of time.

Conservatism Comes of Age

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN
The dean of conservative news commentary got his wreath of roses last week when 500 friends packed the presidential ballroom of the Statler-Hilton Hotel in Washington to do homage to Fulton Lewis Jr. on the occasion of his twenty-fifth anniversary as a radio broadcaster. It was a gala affair, but its true significance depended on the long memories which only the oldest members of the audience could supply.

Twenty-five years ago, when Mr. Lewis first stepped to the mike to give a conservative interpretation of the news, you couldn't have found five people, let alone 500, to do honor to any spokesman for right-wing causes.

The depression had rolled overland, and virtually all the commentators, whether radio or newspaper, were Rooseveltians. Here and there a lone battler for rightness as in the founding fathers' notion of the Constitution could be found in conspicuous places — a David Lawrence, a George Sololsky, a Roake Carter. But you could certainly count them on one hand.

Republicanism had barely started to come back: a young fellow named Robert Taft was making his first splash, and Harold Stassen, then a young businessman's dream of a politician, was looming, temporarily as it turned out, on the horizon of Minnesota. But when Fulton Lewis, as the Mutual Broadcasting System's new commentator, began his career in 1938 he must have felt he was getting a void.

In addition to the ordeal of trying to create an audience for conservatism, a stupendous task, he had one other terrifying thing going against him: his seven o'clock in the evening hour was the time when everybody — well, almost everybody — listened to Amos and Andy.

In his battle to make the American people aware of the destructive dynamic of communism, Mr. Lewis had, during those first years, the strangest of allies. Virtually the only vocal opponent of Stalin, in the days of the popular frontism of the thirties, was a little group of right-wing Socialists on the staff of the New York Weekly, the New Leader, Sol Levitas, Sidney Hook and a few others of the New Leader crowd kept saying that Stalin was a monster, but who was listening? As for the proponents of free enterprise, where were they in 1938? They were still silently licking their wounds after the great Landon fiasco of 1936.

Trying to recall the atmosphere of twenty-five years ago, I think of certain dead people who would have felt themselves honored if they had lived to see Fulton Lewis honored. For instance, there was Benjamin Stolberg, one of the wittiest writers of the time. Ben never became famous in his own right, but everybody presumed on his incredible knowledge of public affairs. As one who talked out the books which he never got around to write, Ben Stolberg fed every important right-wing commentator and columnist with challenging points for a decade.

Anti-Communists and such "underground" champions of freedom as Ben Stolberg began to broaden into bigger streams. Frank Haghen and Felix Morley started a conservative news letter back in 1945 called "Human Events," hoping for a top audience of five thousand people. Today, "Human Events" has a circulation of ninety thousand, including many key people in Congress and in editorial offices who pass on its influence in geometric progression.

EMERGENCE
The young started to become interested in traditional American individualism around 1950. It was the decade of the fifties that saw the emergence of such publications as William Buckley's National Review. And a new student organization came into being, the Intercollegiate Society of Individualists, sparked by Frank Chodorov. This group was a reviving conservatism's answer to the old Socialist intercollegiate organization, the League For Industrial Democracy, which had been created by Jack London.

Fulton Lewis persisted through the lean years, helping the lonely spokesmen for individualism on little magazines and in exposed outposts and being helped by them in turn. It was a symbiotic relationship in which the current flowed strongly in two directions. And last week, when a big group turned out to honor Mr. Lewis as a pioneer of contemporary conservative commentary, it was a sign that the "loyal opposition" to New Dealism, Fair Dealism and the New Frontier had truly come of age.

YOUTH PREPARATION

To the Editor:

This is not being written by a journalist, nor by one of great intelligence, but by a father who believes that he has, to a certain extent, let his children down.

My youngest, now approaching seventeen, is in the School For Boys at Golden, Colorado.

My oldest wears a Marine uniform with pride.

The one in between is wearing the uniform of the U.S. Navy, but not too proudly. He wants out.

My daughter has married and so far as I know is happy.

My reason for this letter is to try to help build our teenagers of both sexes into prepared and worthy citizens of tomorrow.

Through some research and actual experience, I find that there are ways to prepare the youth of today for the continuance of the United States of America for tomorrow and still keep our way of life alive. Schools alone cannot do this. The Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts, and Brownies are contributing immensely in the field of the preteens and early teens. These activities contribute to the schooling of that age group which is still comparatively dependent on parental guidance both mentally and physically. All children who participate in these programs benefit by them.

Boy's Clubs are found to better understanding for the youth in certain fields. Good sportsmanship, creative ability with the hands (art, woodcraft, etc.), the ability to get along with others at work or play; they also teach consideration for others. Again, they do a good job in their own field. But this is where it stops.

In view of the well meaning organizations that I have mentioned, which are designed to cater to this certain age group, the youth changes into the adolescent. At this stage of life the youth is too old (either mentally or physically) for these organizations to fulfill his needs of occupation. He feels that he has new fields of conquest that call him. Therefore I would like to see the people of today's business take these youths in tow. And it can happen because it has worked over the years in Europe.

From the ages of fourteen thru sixteen, where the imagination is at the greatest point of adventure, these imaginative powers can be directed to a worthy cause. This is the time that I would like to see the people of the business world take today's youth into tow.

Let us suppose that a fourteen-year-old has shown that he is either adept in or is interested in mechanics. With a little assistance in this field he could be guided into a learned auto or aircraft mechanic or, for that matter, this may even encourage him to extend his education into becoming a designer of better products for American industry.

The chance could start with an opportunity to come in contact with the tools that apply to the

Is Freedom of Choice An Evil Thing

By FRED G. CLARK and RICHARD S. RIMANOCZY

The intellectuals, who hope to become the nation's economic managers, have done a very persuasive job of selling the obsolescence of individual economic freedom and the "inevitability" of massive government planning.

When executed in scholarly and charming prose, this "inevitability" technique can easily sweep the average reader off his mental feet.

The burden of their song is 1) that private planning, in our highly complicated economy, is "undesirable" because it leads to "instability" and 2) private production decisions are not best for the nation because they are based on what the people want instead of what, for their own good, they should want.

The "instability" part is true, but the undesirability of this instability is false.

In a dynamic, growing, imaginative economy there is no substitute for instability, which really means flexibility and adaptability.

This does not mean that there are never any serious troubles, because progress is never painless, nor is the practice of freedom ever without problems.

The flexibility and adaptability of the free economy come from quick response to customer reactions to the goods and services offered by private business.

These reactions are stop-and-go signals from the free market place.

They say, "There is too much of this," "There is not enough of that," "This price is too high," "This design is not right," etc.

As these signals are received by business, production plans are altered, the losses absorbed, and the mistakes are corrected.

One of the memorable signals in our economic history was the customers' emphatic refusal to surgery by means of a stapling device which has gained the respectful attention of American physicians, Van Citters said.

In the older techniques, the severed ends of blood vessels were tediously stitched together, a process sometimes requiring as much as two hours. Time often spells the difference between success and failure in open-heart surgery, he said.

American surgeons are following up on the procedure, Van Citters said, and at least one American firm has begun to produce the stapling device.

keep on buying Model T Fords when the manufacturer thought they would.

Within a matter of weeks, production was halted and was not resumed until the Model A was ready for the market.

Government - planned production, which must be monopolistic, would have gotten no such signal because the customer would not have had power to react.

Had the Model T been manufactured by government, it would have been the only car in its price class and its production would have continued. The people would have either bought it or have gone without it.

The contrast in the two systems may be likened to the difference between hand-steering and constantly correcting the course of a boat, or lashing the rudder to a certain compass point and going away and leaving it.

Now let's look at the idea that, in the free market, people do not want the things that are best for them, and should have other things whether they want them or not.

It scarcely comes as a surprise to find out that, according to the public planners, the things that the people should want fall in the area of government services.

One author refers to this as the "social imbalance" between economic production in the "private sector" and the "public sector."

Another author describes the public services as "new areas of human fulfillment — education, the arts, the sciences, recreation, personal cultivation and the beautification of the environment."

These are the things, we are told, that the people should prefer above such things as tail-fins, automobiles, fancy television sets, expensive cosmetics, tobacco, liquor, horse races and other extravaganzas.

In Las Vegas, Hirt and his horn were heard by Dinah Shore's producer, who booked him.

"And that was it," the 300-pound, bearded musician said. "We went from there to Ed Sullivan and then to all the shows. The clubs all over the country began to open up. It was the combination of television and Las Vegas that did something that all that time in New Orleans couldn't do."

Hirt's home remains the Creole City. His wife and their eight children (two boys and six girls) live in a six-bedroom house on the outskirts of the city. Hirt has his schedule arranged so that he is away, playing engagements, for two or three weeks and then stays home for two or three weeks.

Trumpet Player Has Good Luck For 30 Years

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—When Vincent Edwards, who had been around Hollywood a long time trying to get a foothold, finally found his ladder in "Ben Casey," he delivered what has become his most famous line:

"Sure," he commented, "I'm an 11-year-old overnight success."

Big Al Hirt, generally conceded to be the No. 1 trumpet player of his generation, has a success story that makes Edwards' rise seem meteoric.

"I've been playing for 30 years, and a professional musician for 18," said Al. "So how do you explain what happened to me about two years ago as anything but luck?"

Hirt, a New Orleans boy, had a good musical education, chose the trumpet as his instrument and for a while played with some of the big bands—the Dorsey Brothers, Ray McKinley's and Horace Heidt's. Then he quietly went back to New Orleans.

"I was always able to make an adequate living," he said, "but a lot of the time I had to work at two jobs—at a radio station in the day and with a band at night."

Eventually he became a partner in a Bourbon Street place, leading his own musical group. But still no one really paid much attention to him, although he was playing the same kind of music that now has all the experts flipping.

"It started when an agent, Gerald Purcell, dropped in one night and heard us," he said. "He was interested and came back to offer me a job in Las Vegas. I'd had offers before, but never anything that paid enough."

In Las Vegas, Hirt and his horn were heard by Dinah Shore's producer, who booked him.

Cuts of Cable Accidental, Pentagon Says

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon said today there have been numerous instances of cuts and breaks in the ocean-bottom communications cable to Thule, Greenland, site of a ballistic missile warning station, but none appear to have been deliberate.

Six instances since the fall of 1961 were listed by the Defense Department in reply to questions by reporters. The most recent was sometime between April 2 and 9.

"Causes have been icebergs, trawlers (using net devices which scrape the bottom), and storms," a spokesman said.

"There has been no known case of any deliberate act on the part of any nation's trawlers to cut cables."

"Reconnaissance planes are flown continually over areas where cables are located to warn trawlers. This is done by dropping leaflets, on which warnings are written in many languages."

The Pentagon's statement was in response to inquiries about a copyright story by the Newhouse newspapers' Advance News Service which said the cable was cut mysteriously at least eight times last year.

The story said an investigation was demanded by the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee after it learned that hydrographic charts showing the cable locations are in the public domain and "had been given to the Russians."

The charts can be bought from the U.S. Navy Hydrographic Office at Suitland, Md.

The cable, operated for the government by the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., is one of several circuits linking the ballistic missile warning station with the United States and with a similar station at Clear, Alaska. In each case of breakage in the Thule cable, alternate circuits were used, and contact with Thule remained unbroken, the Pentagon spokesman said.

Nike-Zeus Scatters Over Wide Area

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Scattered parts of a Nike Zeus anti-missile missile, destroyed in flight over White Sands Missile Range, sprayed an uninhabited area of southern New Mexico's Hondo Valley.

The El Paso Times said pieces of the missile cut an electrical power feeder line, knocking out service to six communities for more than five hours Thursday.

The Army would not link the missile with the power failure but said the missile veered off course during the test and "parts of the Zeus impacted beyond the range boundary."

Racial Discrimination Probe Is Demanded

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Jack Tanner, state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, says he has asked Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy to investigate alleged racial discrimination in Kennewick, Wash.

Tanner disclosed his wire to the U.S. attorney general Thursday about the same time that State Atty. Gen. John J. O'Connell said there would be a state investigation.

Tanner also said there would be a demonstration in Kennewick late next week against the alleged discrimination.

O'Connell told the Tri-City Herald of Olympia that he would assign a member of his staff to investigate. Tanner said last week that Kennewick is the "Birmingham of Washington" and Negroes are excluded from living there.

He also was permitted to visit and study the activities at several heart research institutes and observe a number of Russian heart-lung teams in action.

Van Citters said the Russians openly profess their admiration for American achievements in the field of heart disease. Most of the Soviet open-heart surgery teams were trained in the techniques of heart-lung surgery in U.S. hospitals, he said.

Soviet scientists, on the other hand, have developed a method for splicing blood vessels during

Brig. Gen. Dunn To Leave Fort Carson in July

Brig. Gen. Edward C. Dunn, assistant 5th Infantry Division (Mechanized) commander, will report July 25 to the Army Element, Armed Forces Staff College, Norfolk, Va., from Ft. Carson.

He will be replaced by Brig. Gen. Chester Lee Johnson, now military attaché to Mexico, according to an announcement this week from Washington.

General Johnson is expected to arrive at Carson in August. He is a 1937 graduate of the U.S. Military Academy with a master's degree from Harvard. His basic branch is Artillery.

General Dunn came to Carson in 1961 from Viet Nam. He was deputy commander of Carson's new Army Training Center until the 5th Division was activated in February, 1962.

A native of White Lake, S.D., he commanded the task force which seized Les Iles de Marcouf off Utah Beach, Normandy, on D-Day just two hours before the first invasion wave hit the historic beach.

He fought in five European campaigns serving as battalion commander, regimental executive officer and regimental commander, successively.

Other assignments for General Dunn included two tours at the Armor Center, Ft. Knox, Ky., and a military mission in Turkey. He has been on the staff and faculty of The Cavalry School, Ft. Riley, Kan., was an assistant professor at the U.S. Military Academy Department of Economics, Government and History; and was a department head at the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

General Dunn received his master's degree in history in 1950 from Harvard University.

He has earned the Legion of Merit, the Bronze Star and Army Commendation Medal and oak leaf cluster.

The Duns and their four sons live in Carson quarters.

The annual convention of the Lutheran Women's Missionary League will be held in the University of Denver student union building, Thursday.

The theme of the convention will be "Arise and Go."

The Rev. Robert J. Schrank, of El Paso Tex., will be the keynote speaker, and will address the convention on the topic, "Arise and Go—To Spanish Americans."

Rev. Schrank is a graduate of Concordia Seminary, in St. Louis, Mo. He is presently serving as pastor of the Redeemer Lutheran Church in El Paso.

MY ANSWER by Billy Graham

© 1963 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Syndicate, Inc.

QUESTION: I heard recently an old adage, "Virtue when used to excess becomes vice." The person who used it seemed to be very sincere, but I wondered when it was spoken if it was not incorrect. Are there any limitations upon virtue or not, is what I want to know? E. A. H.

ANSWER: This is a familiar, old adage and has been used a great deal. But the sense in which it has been used has to do more with the kind of superficial hypocrisy that some people practice and not genuine Biblical holiness of life.

There were people in the days of Jesus who did exactly the thing that is attacked by the old saying. Jesus pointed out that the hypocrites when they would give alms would sound the trumpet so that they could be seen of man. He told of others who would pray only when they were standing on a street corner where a crowd could see that they were praying. They paraded their piety publicly to make an impression upon people, but it made a very slight impression upon God.

If the virtue is hypocritical, then, of course, it becomes a vice. But Biblical holy living is the normal way of life of a person dedicated to God and in whom the Spirit of God has come to dwell.

QUESTION: If God loves us so much why do we have to be "reconciled" to Him? Why does He not just save us and be done with it? —P. H.

ANSWER: The holiness of God, against which sin is so terrible, demands that a way be found whereby sin is cleansed and forgiven so that we can come into God's holy presence. Sin separates man from God — a reconciliation is then necessary. But the holiness of God is matched by His love and He has provided everything for the sinner. The Bible tells us: "And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to Himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given us the ministry of reconciliation; to wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto Himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation." We can never understand the necessity of such reconciliation until we sense something of the sinfulness of sin. Nor can we be reconciled without faith in Christ, who made the reconciliation for us. This new relationship is the work of the Holy Spirit in our hearts, enabling us to repent of sin, turn from it and put our trust in Christ as redeemer. You ask why God does not go ahead and save us and be done with it. He has saved us, for the offer is to "whosoever" will believe, but we are not puppets; God does not force salvation on anyone. It is His free gift but we must receive it! Then are we reconciled to God.

QUESTION: I am a failure in business. Does God hold me responsible for success? —H. G.

ANSWER: Eleven hundred unsuccessful experiments didn't mean failure to Edison. He said: "I found out eleven hundred ways not to do things."

Life is a laboratory, and we learn in the school of life by trial and error. You have failed, but that doesn't mean that you will go on failing. Study the lives of great men and you will find that their early history, many times, was marked by failure and discouragement. But the thing that made them great was persistence.

I know many people who have not been highly successful in business who have been glowing successes in their personal lives. The richest men I know, are not necessarily, the best men. We often envy the financial success of tycoons who have had good fortune in business, but the Bible puts it another way. It says: "Covet earnestly the best gifts." The best gifts are those of the spirit: love, faith, hope, peace, and joy. These are not unattainable, and can be possessed by those of limited means and ability. It is surprising to find out that when we covet and come into possession of these gifts of the Spirit, that other things often become more successful too. Your chief responsibility lies in your relationship to God. Perhaps your material failure may be related to your spiritual deficiencies.

AJC BAILS POPE'S MESSAGE
NEW YORK (AP) — The American Jewish Committee, in a statement signed by its president, A. M. Sonnenbend of Boston, says that Pope John XXIII's encyclical, "Peace on Earth," is a "major document in the cause of world peace," setting forth a "broad dimension of possible cooperation" among diverse groups by which "all men of good will work together for human survival and human dignity."

about My MOTHER

Most all other things come by twos, threes, or even by dozens. See the roses, the stars, the sunsets.

Ah, there's brothers and sisters, too, and uncles and aunts and cousins a plenty. But in all the whole big world there's just one mother. There's much more about my mother and good it all must be. In fact she's as good as goodness is, and that's enough for me. Her words are kind, her faith is strong, and her hope as high as the highest tree. You can see from here that she is a dear, — she means everything to me. Not one single emotion comes nearer the divine than my mother's love for me. She is the soaring cloud of radiant rapture that lifts me to new attempts and the strength I need to see me through. I'm taking my mother to church this Mother's Day — what about you???

Salesman Fined For Evasion of 1957 Income Tax

DENVER (UPI) — Robert Golden, 62, of Aurora, a jewelry salesman, was sentenced to two years in prison and fined $2,000 Friday for federal income tax evasion.

All but 30 days of the prison sentence was suspended.

The Internal Revenue Service said Golden was indicted by a federal grand jury last October for filing a false joint income tax return for 1957. The return showed taxable income of $11,362 and tax due $2,257. The indictment charged the income was actually $24,754 and the tax should have been $6,796.

Golden pleaded innocent, but changed the plea to guilty April 19. V. Lee Phillips, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, said the evasion involved omission of income from interest and dividends, and the claiming of fictitious traveling expenses.

Golden has been a salesman since 1938, covering the states of Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico.

Governor Says Allott Approves Favorite Son Role

Sen. Peter Dominic, R., Colo., who accompanied Love at the news conference, concurred.

Earlier in the day Love had lunch with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Maine Gov. John Reed. He said Rusk "ranged the waterfront" in his discussion of world problems.

Asked if he found himself in agreement with the administration's foreign policy positions after the talk with Rusk, Love said:

"I did not find myself in agreement, but rather in sympathy with the magnitude of the problems."

Turning to Colorado problems, the governor said he hoped to have a "blueprint" for the future of the state's higher education system ready for presentation to the people and legislature by next January. He added he had received a list of names from Arthur Adams of the Brookings Institute from which to consider candidates to make an educational survey.

Love said he would like to see a constitutional revision calling for appointment on a bipartisan or non-partisan basis regents for the university.

The governor also said: —He visited Rep. Wayne Aspinall, D-Colo., who recently was released from Bethesda Naval Hospital. He said Aspinall seemed to be getting along fine, but that the congressman told him he would have to take it easy for a while.

—Trade "might be worked out" so that the state could take title to the old Lowry bombing range in exchange for some land it owns that is surrounded by Ft. Carson property.

Army Announces Guard Changes Are Complete

Three of the Army's 16 regular divisions already have taken shape in the new organization: 5th Mechanized Infantry at Ft. Carson, Colo., the 24th Infantry in West Germany, and the 1st Armored at Ft. Hood, Tex.

Two others are in the process of converting—the 8th Infantry in Europe and the 2nd Infantry at Ft. Benning, Ga.

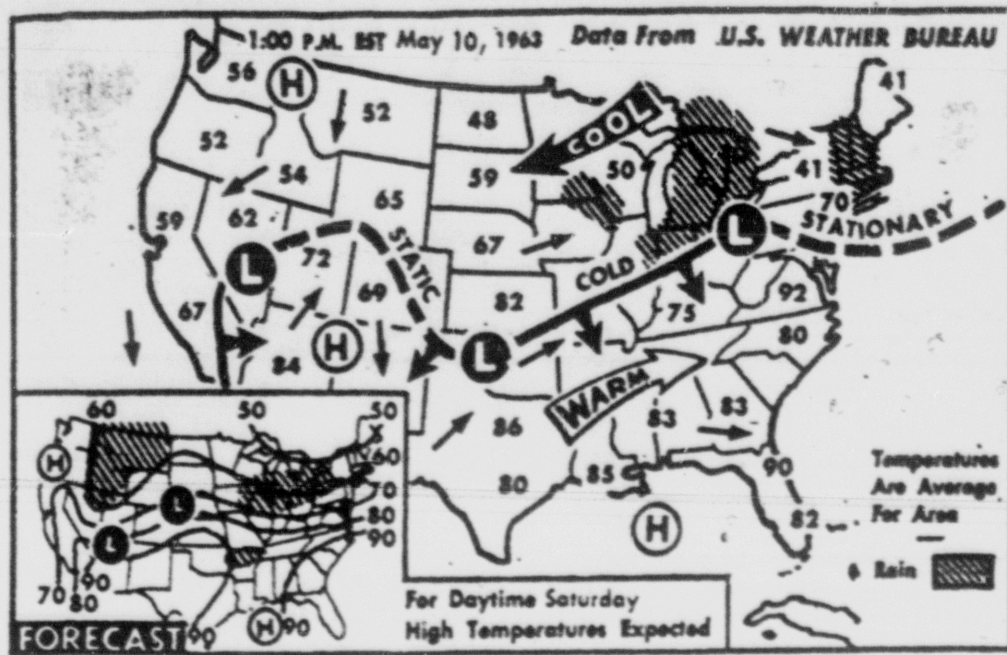

Army officials said that equipment has been shifted along with the men in reorganization but that the making up of shortages in modern gear is a long-range problem.

Ross Says State Aged Fund Harmed By Government

"They formed a commission," he continued, "to change the amendment so that pension money would spill over by some method into the state's general fund. They even fooled the big of the pensioners into voting for their promises they would be better off."

Ross was referring to the amendment which set the $10 million limit on the fund.

However, latest estimates show that approximately $14 million will be needed in the next fiscal year to meet demands on the fund.

Ross estimated that there would be a $22.5 million spillover from the medical care program into the general fund in the next fiscal year and proposed that all of this be turned back to the medicare program.

"This spillover could provide an additional $35 a month to each of about 50,000 pensioners," Ross said. "This $35 added to the $113 would give about $148 a month to each pensioner. Can the Board of Public Welfare say that this is excessive in meeting present day living costs on a monthly basis?"

Forcing a cutback in the allotments would mean more government control in the area of selection of doctors, hospitals and pharmacies for purchase of necessary medical supplies.

"Up to now, they (state officials) have bragged that there has been free choice of doctors and hospitals and pharmacies," Ross said. "But with the restrictive amount of money, they are now saying there will probably be government control of drugs, doctors and hospitals."

"They are talking of having their own pharmaceutical department or selecting cheaper cost hospitals, etc.," Ross continued. "With all his control, the fact remains that the pensioners will still be far from receiving adequate hospital and medical care and that they will get less and less care."

He charged that government control has proved to be inefficient and uneconomical and has forced itself into an area where free enterprise could handle the program better.

"Private enterprise in a free competitive society will do a much more efficient job at less cost," he stated.

"When the government sticks its nose into private enterprise either by its vast subsidies or unreasonable restrictive controls, private enterprise costs more and becomes inefficient," he said.

JEANIE Ross pointed out that since the medical care program was initiated in January of 1958, 63 new privately owned nursing homes were constructed with a bed capacity of 3,296. He said also that there has been a 62 per cent increase of pensioners entering nursing homes.

"The majority of this new homes provide skilled nursing services and a better quality of care. . . the increase in patients provided the private initiative which is adequately supplying a demand without the government doing it," Ross said.

He pointed out that the general fund was getting the cream of the funds from the program, . . . while the pension medicare fund was, at the fixed amount of $10 million, buying a constantly decreasing amount of hospital and medical services for the aged."

"When we look at the results," he continued, "we see that the government experts were not too expert. If they kept their fingers out of the pie and adhered to the original intent of the pension amendment as first passed by the people of Colorado, we would not be in the dilemma facing the pensioners and governmental administrators today."

He asked that the $10 million limitation be removed and all of the money allocated for the fund be used for this purpose.

"The pensioner would then be on individual trading and deal and control of a governmental in the American way of life," he said.

Agreement Ends Racial Strife For Birmingham

"We would hope that this channel will prevent the necessity of further protest demonstrations," King said.

The agreement has no official status. In fact, city officials have issued strongly worded statements that they will not be bound by any agreement the biracial committee reaches.

Nevertheless, King has indicated he would call off demonstrations on the basis of the "good-faith" agreement, at least until the city has had a chance to consider the proposed settlement.

The four points outlined in the agreement are virtually the goals announced by King when he opened the desegregation drive.

The only point not completely won was the matter of charges against the demonstrators.

John V. Christensen, Arapahoe County commissioner and president of the commissioners' state association, said it would be "nearly impossible" to get counties to provide money for the pensioners medicare program.

The commissioners' attorney, J. Fred Schneider, reported a poll of the commissioners' Relief and Welfare Committee showed its members oppose shifting the medicare cost from the sales and liquor tax to property tax.

The chairman of the legislature's Joint Budget Committee, Rep. Oakley Wade, R-Las Animas, was at the Capitol attending a meeting of his group. He did not attend the welfare board session but talked later with reporters.

"I had hoped we could render necessary services and still live within the $10 million fund," Wade said. "It all is a relative matter where they draw the line."

He said there must be "some consistency" and that the program first should take care of "catastrophic illness" but could not possibly cover "every case of the sniffles."

Wade declined comment on specific proposals since his committee is just launching a study of medical care for all aged persons with limited incomes.

State Budget Director Con F. Shea said apparently the state could pay up to $2 million additional health program costs next year without unbalancing its budget.

Crop conditions in southeastern Colorado are reported generally worse than in the north. Las Animas County has had slightly more than one inch of moisture since Jan. 1, the last precipitation coming in March.

Wheat is about 90 per cent destroyed and prospects for planting sorghums are considered poor because of a lack of soil moisture. Early sugar beets were lost to wind in Las Animas County, and there is a possibility there will be no water in irrigation ditches by next month.

Without the rules and regulations on individual trading and deal and control of a governmental in the American way of life," he said.

Medical Society Recommends More Funds for Aged

(Continued From Page One) the National Amitt League, an old age pensioners organization, said during the afternoon session that funds the state is receiving under the federal Kerr-Mills law should be separated from the medical and hospital care fund. Together, he said, the two funds could meet the current need.

The Kerr-Mills funds total $4.5 million a year. The medicare fund for pensioners is set at $10 million yearly. The state has been using the federal money as part of the $10 million fund, thereby increasing the spillover on pension money into the state's general fund. The Kerr-Mills law was passed after Colorado enacted its program.

Hugh J. Ross of Colorado Springs, a former El Paso County commissioner, spoke as a representative of another pension group, Clubs for Social Security. He said the pensioners should be given the entire spillover—expected to be $22.5 million this year. Ross estimated it would add $35 monthly to each old age pensioner, bringing the maximum to $148.

He said the pensioner then would be in a position to deal with hospitals, purchase his own health insurance, and pay physicians and druggists of his choice for services.

Biosborn said he doesn't like a proposal offered during the morning by Robert Denholm, president of the Colorado Hospital Association, and also endorsed by the Colorado Medical Society.

Under it, every pensioner would be required to pay $3 each month into a special hospital and medical insurance fund, then the individual's pension would be increased by the same amount by the welfare board since the fund charge would increase his cost of living.

The fund would be used to supplement the hospital and medical care fund.

The cost would reduce the spillover to the state's general fund about $1.8 million a year. However, the system would not provide sufficient money to meet the entire expense of the medical care program at its present level. Welfare Director Guy Justis estimates the total cost next fiscal year will approach $14 million.

Ray Kimball, director of the Public Expenditure Council, warned the board in a letter read in his absence that this is the time for cooperation and "considerable belt tightening from all — the state, the pensioners, the vendor groups and the taxpayers."

He predicted taxpayer-forced tax limitations and other spending controls if governmental expenses keep rising.

As a means of holding down pension costs of all types, the president of the Colorado Chamber of Commerce, B. C. Essig of Denver, suggested that "pension rolls, the same as government payrolls, should be made available to public examination, an action that would materially encourage personal and family responsibility." His letter was read by Howard N. Yates, chamber manager.

John V. Christensen, Arapahoe County commissioner and president of the commissioners' state association, said it would be "nearly impossible" to get counties to provide money for the pensioners medicare program.

The commissioners' attorney, J. Fred Schneider, reported a poll of the commissioners' Relief and Welfare Committee showed its members oppose shifting the medicare cost from the sales and liquor tax to property tax.

JFK-Pearson Report Progress In Opening Talks

2. Prospects for disarmament and a nuclear test-ban treaty—something Pearson said certainly would be dealt with in a communique.

3. Sharing of defense production by the United States and Canada. The prime minister said this would be taken up at an early meeting between U.S. Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Canada's Minister of Defense Production C. M. Drury.

4. The further development and use of improved channels of communication between the American and Canadian governments — channels that virtually dried up during the waning months in office of Canada's former Prime Minister John G. Diefenbaker, defeated last month by Pearson in a national election.

5. Forthcoming tariff-reduction negotiations in Geneva, at which Pearson said both nations share hopes for success in lowering trade barriers.

6. The development of a multilateral nuclear force within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization—a prime topic to be taken up at a NATO ministerial meeting in Ottawa later this month.

7. The Canadian labor dispute between two maritime unions which has prompted sniping at some Canadian vessels docked at American ports on the Great Lakes. The latest incident occurred Thursday at Cleveland.

Pearson said he and Kennedy did not want this to develop into a serious problem and, at the President's suggestion, a solution will be sought at an early meeting between U.S. Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz, AFL-CIO President George Meany, the Canadian Minister of Labor and a top Canadian labor leader.

House Plans You Can Buy

By Hiawatha Estes, AIBD

Today more people are beginning to realize that the more important rooms should be located at the rear of the home so as to be able to enjoy a garden view and plenty of sunshine in privacy. Here, indoor-outdoor areas blend visually and physically through either glass doors or windows from the family and living rooms and two bedrooms.

The planning stage of your home is the best time to provide for the comforts you will want in the years to come. It is also the most economical time to do it rather than plan additions at a later date. The four bedrooms and three baths offered in this home will accommodate a large family with adequate space remaining to take care of occasional guests.

Along one side of the wide, roofed front porch is a planting area where lush foliage and flowers add to the beauty of the entrance. The generous size entry is well lighted by a pane of glass next to the front door and from the sliding glass doors in the living room, since only a partial wall separates these two areas. The center hall offers direct access to every section of the house.

A kitchen nook, formal dining area and the patio furnish three different kinds of eating areas, all of which are convenient to the kitchen. Note how the door leading from the kitchen to the dining room has been located so that foot traffic will not cross the nook and so very little of the kitchen can be seen from the dining room. A wide pantry supplements the already large amount of storage area. A partial wall at the rear of the built-in range opens to the family room. A short hall connects the service, kitchen, garage and family room.

This design is certainly not lacking in baths. A combination bath and dressing room are part of the master bedroom suite. A family bath has both tub and shower while a complete bath is accessible from the service. All of these baths feature pullman lavatories.

To create a more contemporary design, there are no offsets in the front wall of the house. This also helps keep the depth of the house to a minimum so it can be constructed on a relatively shallow lot.

Design School Set for Home Builders Meeting

WASHINGTON — A design school, "How to Make Plans and Influence People," will be a feature of the 19th annual convention - exposition of the National Association of Home Builders, to be held in Chicago Dec. 12-16.

The school will run continuously on Thursday, Dec. 13, and will cover every phase of design including site and floor planning, emphasis will be given to special areas of a home such as kitchen, family rooms and bedrooms. Robert A. Fox, a Plymouth Meeting, Pa., home builder who heads NAHB's standing committee on design, will be the moderator.

Those attending the school, which will be set up in the form of a classroom, will work from an elaborate, 100-page textbook on design. The school will be held in the large Banquet room of McCormick Place, the huge Chicago hall at which all the convention sessions and the Exposition will be held.

Leonard L. Frank, NAHB president, announced that plans are shaping up for a "Government Day" at the convention on Saturday, Dec. 15. Sen. John J. Sparkman, (D-Ala.) chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Housing and Robert C. Weaver, administrator of the Housing and Home Finance Agency, will be among the speakers on that program.

Chet Huntley and David Brinkley, famed team of TV commentators, will give a special report on the "State of the Nation" as a feature of the Government Day program. This will be the first time for Huntley and Brinkley to make a personal appearance together before a convention audience. The TV stars will cover the Washington scene and news in the manner of their daily broadcasts.

Neal J. Hardy, Commissioner of the Federal Housing Administration, will speak Friday at a program on "Mortgage Finance and Prospects for 1963."

Sharing the microphone on this program will also be Rep. William B. Widnall, (R-N.J.), a member of the House Banking and Currency Committee; Dale M. Thompson, President of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, and James J. Saxon, Comptroller of the Currency.

Workshops will center on numerous technical subjects including new concepts of land development, advertising, custom building, the decoration of model homes housing research, and trading.

The Exposition, with more than 500 glittering displays of new products for 1963's new homes, will open early on Wednesday, Dec. 12, and run through Sunday, Dec. 16. The exhibits will fill the second floor of McCormick Place.

QUESTION: I'm hoping to build an outdoor fireplace somewhere in our backyard, which goes back about 90 feet.

I'm fairly certain I can handle the construction of it all right, but I need some advice about where it should be located, how high, etc. Can you help me?

ANSWER: As a general rule, the fireplace should be located as near to the house as possible, if only for the sake of convenience. However, this is not always practical, because the chimney of the fireplace should always be higher than the adjoining structure to prevent down drafts. Most fireplaces, therefore, are built a considerable distance away from the house.

Build the fireplace so that it faces the prevailing winds. The chimney should have a cap to keep out water and possibly a screen to check flying sparks from wood fires. You can get by without a chimney if you plan to burn only charcoal. The height of the fireplace depends on personal preference, but it should be high enough to afford a convenient working level.

There isn't much else we can tell you, since so much depends on how elaborate your project will be. One thing to keep in mind: an outdoor fireplace can be given added attractiveness by coloring the outside with one of the excellent masonry paints now on the market.

Does the average woman run a long check-list reports covering everything from site conditions of the home to documents that should be transferred at the time of the sale?

But any disinterested third party who is an expert may give you a report, if there is no firm that will do the entire job, Anthony says. The individual reports of heating contractors, electrical experts, plumbing contractors can help, altho a combined effort and a method helps reveal faults and reach conclusions, he says.

"One puzzling aspect to a new home buyer are conditions of the site," Anthony points out. "Many people say, 'Oh, there are no water problems because the house is on level ground,' but the condition or kind of soil, such as clay, impermeable to water, may have much to do with water drainage," he explains.

Points covered in his firm's large check list include community and neighborhood valuation. Such items as traffic characteristics, municipal installations contemplated, snow removal, fire department and garbage pickup are analyzed.

These are some of the points from other categories on the check list.

SITE: Is there surface drainage from adjacent property; evidence of erosion; filled land or frost heave in the driveways? Covers for open pits?

ON-SITE UTILITIES: Water system, storage tank, disposal system, storm drainage system, gas system, electric system.

EXTERIOR: Construction and structural adequacy, foundation; windows — flashing, caulking, shutter condition; gutters and leaders; drainage of downspouts, storm drains; roof flashings, and condition; chimney condition; evidence of termites or decay and conditions favoring termites.

BASEMENT AND UTILITY (or crawl) AREAS: Foundation walls, floors and windows are checked and overhead beams tested for structural adequacy. Dittio girders, columns, piers. Drainage, flooding seepage, condensation and dampness evidence, ventilation adequacy; termites and decay evidence or conditions favoring it, such as wood in contact with soil.

BUILDING UTILITIES: Electric system, wiring, distribution panel and special circuits — oil burner, pump, electric range, air conditioner, drier, bathroom heater, dishwasher. Plumbing system; water system; heater.

ROOM ANALYSIS: Floor, ceiling, walls, wainscoting in all rooms. Utilities in the kitchen are checked.

GARAGE: Fireproofing, floor pitch, doors, ventilation, adequacy and illumination adequacy are established.

This can be avoided by applying clear, exterior non-yellowing acrylic or butyrate lacquer. You can, of course, paint aluminum easily with a wide selection of colorful exterior enamels. Wall Attachments Simple Once You Get Hang of It

There comes a time when you or your wife will want to hang a picture or mirror on those unmarred walls in your home. Or, in an older dwelling, you may have just painted or papered the walls. In either event, it's understandable if you hesitate to pound holes in those otherwise perfect surfaces.

Picture hanging, when done with care and thought, can be done with a minimum of permanent damage.

Simplest hanging devices are adhesive hooks, metal hooks backed with a cloth adhesive that becomes sticky when soaked in water. The adhesive should dry on the wall in about 20 minutes. It can be removed by soaking again. Hooks are available in a variety of sizes for varying weight. Use them for relatively light objects only; never for mirrors or other breakable items.

For more security, use regular picture hooks, a hook with a brad that goes thru it at an angle. Use cellulose tape on the wall to prevent the plaster from cracking. This doesn't always work, and if you are driving a large nail, drill a pilot hole first. The hole needn't be more than a quarter-inch deep or just enough to start the nail.

With heavy hooks and long nails, try to locate the wall stud and drive the nail into that.

Extremely heavy items—large mirrors and shelves—should be hung with a wall anchor or toggle bolt, particularly on thin walls. Drill a hole first. The wall anchor opens behind the wall as the bolt is tightened. Toggle bolts have collapsible wings that fold and then open behind the wall.

Hangers for the backs of pictures are generally fastened to the frame with screws. The hole in the tiny metal plate slips over the wall hook.

For sizable items use wire. Fasten the ends to tiny screw eyes on each side of the frame behind the picture.

Since there will be a certain amount of slack in the wire, determine where it will meet the wall hook before installing the hook. Mark the wall where you want the top of the frame to come. Then measure the distance from the wire—pulling it tight first—to the top of the frame. Measure down this same distance from the mark on the wall and place the hook there.

Don't trust your eye to get the picture straight. Use a plumb bob along one edge of the picture. You can improvise one with a string and a small object of moderate weight. A small mark or two on the wall at the bottom of the picture will help you get the right position again if you take down the picture.

How to Keep Well

By DR. T. R. VAN DELLEN

To the limit of science questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

TYPHOID, A SLEEPING DRAGON

The recent typhoid outbreaks here and there serve to remind us not to be too complacent about some of our old enemies. A few cases are enough to make the front pages of many newspapers today but at one time, more than one-third of all the patients seen by physicians were victims of this disease. This was before the days of modern sanitation and the typhoid vaccine.

The infection continues to plague us because there are many typhoid carriers in the United States and each is a potential source of a widespread epidemic. How troublesome these carriers are depends upon their personal habits, where they live, and what they do.

Those who handle food for public consumption and dairy workers are the most menacing. Others contaminate the water or milk supply. Food becomes a source of infection when the dishes are washed with infected water or the carrier spreads the germs via the hands. Travelers to countries where sanitary conditions are poor must be on the alert for typhoid and other intestinal disorders because the majority of such diseases are passed along in this way. The vaccine is recommended for those traveling in out of the way places.

The majority of carriers have had typhoid and recovered but nests of organisms remain in the body long after the active stage subsides. The bacilli favor the gall bladder and occasionally the liver. Most of our modern carriers do not remember having the disease because it was missed or was too slight to warrant medical attention.

As a rule, men or women with a known case of typhoid fever are followed carefully through convalescence and the discharges are examined periodically until the physician is certain all the typhoid organisms within the body are dead. The physician is at fault when he fails to report a case to health authorities.

Every victim of this disease should remain in bed under isolation conditions until the disorder is brought under control. It is best treated with chloramphenicol, an antibiotic that appears to be specific for this infection. Analgesics control headache and muscle pain. Phenylbutazone, an arthritis remedy, also is used by European and Asian physicians to combat the toxemia of typhoid.

Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

Re-Election of Fire Chief Is Delayed

LOVELAND (AP) — Only one thing could have stopped members of the Loveland Volunteer Fire Department from re-electing Arthur Moskal as fire chief for the fourth year in a row.

And that happened. An alarm sent the firemen to a weed fire three miles south of town.

The fire ladders returned to the station and elected Moskal two hours later.

Narcotics Suspected In Lipscomb's Death

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI)—Gene "Big Daddy" Lipscomb, 290-pound pro football star famed for his size and strength, died suddenly Friday and doctors said, "The presumption is that death was caused by an overdose of narcotics."

The 6-foot, 6-inch Lipscomb, a member of the Pittsburgh Steelers team after years of stardom with the Baltimore Colts, was found seated at a table in the kitchen of a friend's apartment early Friday morning. He was unconscious and breathing heavily.

An ambulance took him to Lutheran Hospital, but he was pronounced dead on arrival.

Although friends and Steelers team officials insisted that Lipscomb died of a heart attack, a preliminary autopsy, reported:

"No other cause of death was found, so that at this point the presumption is that death was caused by an overdose of narcotics. No trace of disease or other factors were found."

Other tests, to determine the presence or absence of narcotics in Lipscomb's vital organs, were not expected to be completed until Monday or Tuesday.

A syringe, which Dr. Breitenacker described as "makeshift," was found in a waste basket in the kitchen. A preliminary test of the syringe for narcotics was negative, but further tests were being conducted.

Lipscomb's body was reported to bear puncture marks on both arms.

Lipscomb, whose size and enormous strength made him one of the few players to achieve pro football fame despite the fact he did not attend college, died after what a friend called "a party" Thursday night.

Police said Timothy Black, 25, in whose apartment Lipscomb was found, told them he and "Big Daddy" took two girls to the party. Later they took the two girls home and then headed for Black's apartment. Just before they reached the apartment, Black said he decided to stop at a local luncheon for something to eat.

Lipscomb went ahead to the apartment, the police quoted Black. A short time later when Black reached home, he found "Big Daddy" unconscious.

After Lipscomb's body arrived at the hospital, it was identified by several of his former Colt teammates.

Claude (Buddy) Young, former pro football star and a friend of Lipscomb, said he could not believe narcotics played any part in the giant's death.

"I have never known Big Daddy to take any kind of dope," Young said. "He wouldn't do it."

Baltimore Rally Nips Yankees

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Baltimore Orioles rallied for three runs in the eighth inning and whipped the New York Yankees 6-3 Friday night, dealing the slumping world champions their fourth straight loss.

The Orioles did all their scoring in the eighth off relief pitcher Hal Reniff with two out.

With two runners aboard as a result of walks, Jackie Brandt slammed a double for the tie-breaking run, then John Orsino followed with a two-run single.

Oriole relief pitcher Dick Hall, who gave up two runs after rain caused a 35-minute delay in the eighth inning, was the winning pitcher.

Drysdale Hurls Dodgers To 2-1 Win Over Giants

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Don Drysdale snapped his three-game losing streak Friday night by hurling the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 2-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants in which he struck out 11 men.

The lanky Dodger pitcher had not won a game since April 13, but Friday night he hurled a six-hitter and only catcher Tom Haller's homer in the second inning kept him from gaining a shutout.

From the fourth inning until the ninth, he retired 13 men in a row. In the top of the ninth, Willie

Stock Car Races Set for Tonight For Two Tracks

The second weekend of racing at the Pikes Peak Speedway is set for tonight with time trials for the region's top stock cars scheduled for 7 p.m.

Sportsman's Raceway Park, also located just east of Colorado Springs on Highway 24 near the Peterson Field entrance, will also run tonight with starting times the same.

Last Saturday an ironic twist of events provided the top thrills for some 1,000 fans at the Pikes Peak Speedway. Dale DeWitt, who turned in the fastest qualifying time, came to a sudden stop along the rail during the main event.

DeWitt, a close contender for first position until the 18th lap, hit sand and gravel tossed onto the track around the north turn by several other racers earlier, and careened off the safety rail and mangled the front of his car.

Wes Vandervoort took over the lead and held it until the final turn when Joe Lehman of Englewood cut on the final turn and finished just a radiator cap ahead of Vandervoort at the line.

The surprise event of the evening was provided by four visiting drivers in what is known as "Jet Coupes" when drivers Jack Toms, Harv Zimmerly, Ray Flannigan and Harry McCool drove a special 12-lap demonstration race. Earlier, Dale Reck won the Class A Dash and Larry Cook, also of Englewood, captured the Class B Dash.

Ralph (Cooney) Weiland, former National Hockey League star, coaches the Harvard golf team.

Tigers Take Lead in RMC Tennis

Colorado College's tennis team attempts to wrap up its second straight Rocky Mountain Conference title today at the Garden of the Gods Club after taking an almost unbeatable lead in Friday's opening rounds.

The Tigers piled up 19 points in the Friday activity while Colorado State College trails in second place with eight points, and Adams State is third with a single point. Colorado Mines failed to score.

Two CC freshmen, Cy Dyer of the Tigers' No. 1 player, Russ Sperry, the defending individual champion of the Rocky Mountain Conference, was suspended from play after participating in a "pantie raid" on the CC campus Thursday night in which an estimated 400 students took part.

Altman Homer Gives Cards 1-0 Win Over Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP)—George Altman socked his first home run of the year with two out in the ninth Friday night, breaking up a brilliant pitching duel between Curt Simmons and Bob Friend and giving St. Louis a 1-0 victory over Pittsburgh.

The Pirates threatened in their half of the ninth as Donn Clendenon and Bill Mazeroski singled with two out. But Simmons got Bob Bailey to fly out to Altman.

Friend had stymied the Cards on three singles until Altman's blast dropped into the right field stands. The Pirates' right-hander wound up pitching a five-hitter with Ken Boyer getting three singles for the Cards.

The Cubs put both their hits together in the seventh inning for their lone run off Farrell who struck out 13 batters. Lou Brock singled to open the inning, breaking up Farrell's bid for a no-hit ter, and one out later Billy Williams tripled.

That was all the Cubs got as Farrell squared his record at 3-3. The Colts scored twice in the fourth inning on singles by Al Spangler, Pete Rannels and Staul and a force out. Farrell drove in a run with a single in the seventh and the Colts closed out their scoring in the eighth when Spangler singled, stole second, moved to third on a grounder, and scored on Staul's single.

Lower-Priced Issues Spark Market Advance

By ED MORSE
AP Business News Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A resurgence of lower-priced issues sparked a late stock market rally Friday, giving the list its third straight daily rise. Trading was active.

The 1963 market, heretofore, has been led by blue chip prices and the "public"—with its traditional preference for cheaper stocks — has been reluctant to come in. A gradual swing to the lower-priced stocks has been apparent late this week and Friday it was a strong feature.

Seven of the 15 most active issues stood at under $20 a share. The most active stock was Pacific Petroleum, advancing 1/4 to 13 1/2 on turnover of 313,000 shares.

The sale of 45,000 shares of Pacific Petroleum removed from the market a large supply of this stock which had been overhanging. Later came a report that Pacific Petroleum expects a gain in earnings this year.

General Motors, which had been loafing along, closed with enough strength to make an all-time high of 73 1/2, gaining 1/2.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended the day with a gain of 1.33 at 723.30.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 3/4 to 272.3, another of its historic highs, with industrials up 9 to a new high, 100.3, and utilities off 1/2.

Of 1,331 issues traded, 626 advanced and 448 declined. Highs for the year totaled 112 and lows 14.

Volume was 5.26 million shares compared with 5.63 million Thursday.

Thirteen of the 15 most active stocks advanced and 2 declined.

Prices worked generally higher on the New York Stock Exchange. Corporate and U.S. government bonds rose unevenly.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market showed little net change in mixed and moderately active transactions Friday on the Board of Trade.

Soybeans finished with gains running to a cent a bushel while all grains closed only minor fractions up or down. Some contracts swung over a range of about a cent, however, but bulges attracted profit-taking and setbacks encouraged scattered short-covering.

Brokers said the trade appeared mainly to be toward evening up or shortening commitments for the weekend and against any surprises in the government's May crop report which was issued after the close of the exchange.

Influences in the grains were not particularly significant. Tenders of May wheat still were absent but there were no signs of urgent short-covering.

At the close, May wheat was 1/2 cent a bushel higher to 4 1/2, May $2.08-09; corn 1/4 higher to 1 1/4, May $1.20-21; oats unchanged to 1/4 lower, May 60 3/4; rye unchanged to 1/4 lower, May $1.28-29; soybeans 1/2 cent higher, May $2.64.

HUGH HAVENS

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market is poised at a precarious point on the ladder of the Dow Jones industrial average.

Will it climb a little higher to a new all-time peak or will it fall back?

There are varied opinions about this question on Wall Street but optimists seem to outnumber pessimists.

The market appears to have broadened and many of the more speculative issues have come to the forefront, says Lawrence Bleiberg of Bache & Co. However, he adds, there has been no lack of quality leadership as the aluminum, electrical equipment, business machine airline groups were active and higher.

"The market gives every indication of moving higher and we feel selected purchases in the steel, aluminum and savings and loan issues should prove worthwhile," Bleiberg says.

Another analyst, B. K. Thurlow of Winslow, Cohn & Stetson, offers the opinion that the progress of stock prices has been labored for a month and may now have come to at least a temporary halt.

"We have the feeling that the market is seeking a pretext for a shakeout," he comments. "The rally has become stale and overbought resistance still looks prodigious."

He is a Kiwanian and a member of the Knights of Columbus, and was active in the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Trinidad.

Mr. and Mrs. Havens have three sons, Jim, 11, Jeffrey, 9, and Mark, 6. Mrs. Havens and sons will move to Colorado Springs at the end of the current school year.

The Colorado Springs store is one of five owned by Stark Inc. Others are in Greeley, Loveland, Fort Collins and La Junta, where the original store was established in 1897. The company is owned by J. E. and L. L. Stark, brothers, and their father F. M. Stark.

The Colorado Springs store has been managed for the last few months by Ed Stark, who will return to La Junta.

Speeding Charge Reduced by Judge Friday

Judge Allan Asher Friday in Municipal Court told a defendant charged with speeding, that "defective equipment is not a defense to a charge of this nature."

He explained to the defendant, Norma Enders, 38, Route 2, that it is up to the owner to see that her car is in proper working order.

Mrs. Enders had been cited April 19 by Patrolman Henry Fryer who testified that he clocked her driving in excess of 90 miles an hour in a 30-mile zone.

Mrs. Enders brought a statement to court showing that her speedometer was off. She said she had had the car only two weeks before she received the ticket.

The speeding charge was converted to a warning ticket by the judge because Mrs. Enders' record showed no previous moving violations.

A charge of riotous conduct was dismissed against Adolfo Miranda, 28, 106 S. Wahsatch, but the student on probation until this date.

James Ellis, 27, 1132 E. Costilla, who was charged with riotous conduct and drunkenness until Tuesday.

Three men failed to appear in court on drunk charges and the judge ordered their bonds of $25 each be forfeited. They were Travis Slaback, 38, 542 E. Platte Ave., Glen Goodall, 37, 329 E. Yampa, and William Duffy, 33, 1617 Sherman.

Katherine Henderson, 37, 2511 W. Pikes Peak Ave., pleaded guilty to a drunk charge and was given a 10-day jail sentence beginning today. Otis Weidon, 40, 3331 W. Colorado Ave., pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $25.

Jack Rowan, 50, pleaded guilty to a vagrancy charge and was given 15 days in city jail.

Minuteman Expert To Address AFA Cadets Next Week

A retired Air Force officer who played a key role in the development of the Minuteman ICBM will speak to cadets enrolled in astronautics courses Tuesday and Wednesday and will be guest Tuesday evening of the Astronautics Department dining-in.

Col. Edward N. Hall, (USAF ret.), assistant to the chief scientist of the United Aircraft Corp., Hartford, Conn., will also meet Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren during his two-day stay.

For his work on ICBM's and rocket engines, Col. Hall was elected a Fellow of the American Rocket Society in both 1954 and 1955 and also was given that organization's Robert H. Goddard Memorial Award for his outstanding contribution to the development of liquid propulsion engines.

In 1958, Col. Hall was awarded the Legion of Merit for his work in the development of missile weapon systems.

A major portion of the book "Ace in the Hole" by Roy Neal is devoted to Col. Hall's work on the Minuteman.

As chief of the Propulsion Branch of the Western Development Division (later known as the Ballistic Missile Division) he took part in development of engines for ICBM's and the Thor IRBM.

The signs are to be made of Colorado red sandstone, concrete and steel. The larger letters will be six inches high and will be of the satin black aluminized variety. The smaller letters will be four inches tall. Overall, the signs will be 8 by 24 feet in size and illuminated.

The signs will be erected by early June, according to officials in the city engineer's office, where specifications are available.

AFA Tours Set For High School Seniors in May

They're here again.

A sure sign that Spring is here, and Summer not too far behind, is the daily appearance at the Air Force Academy of the procession of bright yellow school buses bearing high school seniors on their pre-graduation jaunts across the country.

During May, seniors from no less than 27 high schools scattered around the entire western U.S. have requested official Academy tours. The number of casual visitors will undoubtedly run much higher.

Classes will visit from Nebraska, Wyoming, Kansas, Missouri, Texas, New Mexico and, of course, Colorado.

Nebraskans' interest in the Academy is reflected by the fact that classes from 12 communities will receive tours.

Colorado schools scheduled for visits include those from: Antonio, Gilchrist, Weston, Oak Creek, Lamar, and Burlington.

Seniors on official visits are given a tour and briefing by the superintendent's staff and usually wind up their stay by attending a performance at the Planetarium.

Five Plead Guilty in District Court

Five defendants pleaded guilty before Judge David W. Enoch in District Court Friday.

The first was Alfred Waldo Bian charged with burglary. Bian, 26, of 824 S. Royer St. was accused of breaking into Monty's Inn, 1019 S. Tejon St. April 30. A second count of conspiracy was dismissed by the district attorney's office, represented by Montell Dunn.

Bian will re-appear in court May 24 for sentencing.

In a companion case William Lee Martinez, 20, of 215 E. Las Vegas St. also pleaded guilty to burglary and had the conspiracy count dismissed. The judge set May 24 as the date for pre-sentence investigation.

William H. Strehl pleaded "no contest," equivalent to guilty, to no account check and had June 21 set for pre-sentence investigation.

Strehl, 38, of 3306 N. Prospect St. is accused of giving a $20 no account check to the Canon Lounge, Manitou Springs, Feb. 23.

An out-of-town man, G. D. White, 32, of Gordon, West Va. was also charged with no account check and is scheduled to re-appear June 7 for sentencing.

According to information the defendant is accused of passing a no account check for $15 to Millers Super Market April 16.

Richard Horace Bodhaine Jr., 24, of Ramah, entered a guilty plea to forgery. He gave a forged $49.32 check to Drive-In Liquors March 9.

Bodhaine will be sentenced May 24.

Youth to Be Tried On Sanity Issue

Bobbie D. Slocum has been found legally insane by Dr. Richard Conde and will be tried May 21 on the sanity issue.

Slocum, 20, of Ft. Carson, pleaded innocent by reason of insanity March 22 to a charge of larceny of a motor vehicle. He is alleged to have taken a car worth $1,950 from Mrs. Helen Hervart, March 16.

According to the medical report the defendant is paranoid and schizophrenic. He is represented by counsel Howard Kunstle.

The presiding judge was David W. Enoch and Montell Dunn was the deputy district attorney.

16 Soap Box Racers To Carry AFA Colors

The colors of an Air Force Academy cadet squadron may ride the winner of the national soap box derby to be held this summer in Akron, Ohio.

Sixteen of the 24 cadet squadrons at the Academy have agreed to sponsor junior hot rodders entered in the local soap box derby competition. The drivers will carry their sponsors' colors in the Colorado Springs races and into the national finals — if they're lucky enough to make it.

All 16 of the derby drivers are to be guests of cadets Saturday. They will become acquainted with their sponsors and watch the entire 2,400-man Cadet Wing parade.

Film Portrays Agency Work Of United Fund

A "highly professional" seven minute film, dramatically portraying the work of the local agencies in the Pikes Peak United Fund has been produced by Colorado Springs talent and will be shown to hundreds of industrial, military, and social groups during the next six months, according to Brown H. Mayall, chairman of the public relations committee. The United Fund will campaign in October to raise $480,000 to support 33 agencies.

Designed to fit into the busiest club and industrial schedule the film, entitled "The Measure of an Hour" takes the viewer to such places as the Cerebral Palsy Pre-School, a scout camping trip, and to a family counselor's office.

There the viewer sees for himself the importance of the services rendered by local agencies to aid the handicapped, enrich the lives of healthy, normal children and to solve the problems of families on the brink of divorce.

The 16 mm color film was narrated by Hal Kennedy of KKTU who was also placed in charge of the production by the public relations committee.

Art work was donated by KRDO-TV. Some of the technical aspects of the production were donated by Carl Pehlman of Industrial Colorfilm.

Photography was either provided by the local agency or taken especially for the film by Mrs. Malcolm Anderson, public relations director of the Pikes Peak United Fund.

Organizations wishing to include the film in a program may arrange this by calling the United Fund, 632-1543. Those wanting a full program may request a speaker to accompany the film.

Two Theatres To Show 'Bikini'

American International's "Operation Bikini" combines sex and one of World War II's most unusual and thrill-packed tales of heroism, plus an all-star cast of Hollywood's top young and athletic he-men for what has been acclaimed the finest war action picture in many a year.

"Operation Bikini," which opens Wednesday at the 8th Street & Starlite Drive-in Theatres, stars Tab Hunter, Frankie Avalon, Scott Brady, Jim Backus, Gary Crosby and Jody McCrea in key roles. The sea adventure thriller, filmed partly in color and in wide screen scope, also introduces the voluptuous Eva Six, Hungarian sexsation, in her first American film role with additional pulchri-

One of the most dramatic and important actions of World War II's battle against Japan is told for the first time in "Operation Bikini." It's the story of how a single submarine delivers a brave six-man naval underwater demolition team to a rendezvous behind enemy lines to undertake a secret operation that proved to be one of the keys to our final victory.

The second feature, "California," stars Jock Mahoney.

'Ben-Hur' to Be Shown at Chief

The Chief Theatre announces the return engagement of William Wyler's presentation of "Ben-Hur," a story of the time of the Christ, filmed in technicolor and Camera 65.

"Ben-Hur," a winner of 11 Academy Awards, including the "Best Picture," and starring Charlton Heston, Jack Hawkins, Haya Harareet, Stephen Boyd, Hugh Griffith, Moratha Scott with Cathy O'Donnell and Sam Jaffe, starts Wednesday at the Chief Theatre.

'Ladykillers' Set Tuesday at Center

"The Ladykillers," one of the best of the now classic British films starring Alec Guinness, will return to the Fine Arts Center movie screen at 2:30, 7:15 and 9 p.m. Tuesday.

As in "Lavender Hill Mob" and others, Guinness and company spoof hoodlums and the law to a riotous degree. This film is a particular parody on the ten-current American movie obsession with stories of humble citizens being terrorized by criminals of one sort or another.

In this case it is a question of who is terrorizing whom. The citizen is a sweet little old lady (Katie Johnson) who rents a room to Guinness who asks permission to hold music recitals in his room. She listens in delighted innocence to a scratchy recording being played by a group of "musicians" who look like rejects from a Scotland Yard lineup.

The gang is working on a masterpiece, alright—the heist of 60,000 pounds from an armored car.

Aircadia Books 'Thunder Road'

"Thunder Road," opening on Wednesday at the Aircadia Drive-in Theatre, is by way of being something of an all-Robert Mitchum movie. It was produced by Mitchum. Mitchum is the star. Mitchum wrote the original moon-shining story on which the script was based. Mitchum wrote two songs for the picture. And, finally, Mitchum is the progenitor of sixteen-year-old Jim Mitchum, who makes his movie debut in a featured role in "Thunder Road."

The co-feature on the program stars Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin in "Sergeants Three."

To the first 50 patrons attending Wednesday evening the Aircadia will present absolutely free a recording of Robert Mitchum singing "Thunder Road."

'David and Lisa' Showing at Peak

"David and Lisa," starring Janet Margolin and Keir Dullea, is showing at the Peak Theatre.

Janet Margolin has been signed to a personal contract by George Stevens and is playing Mary, sister of Lazarus, in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." Keir Dullea has been signed by Seven Arts Productions to a non-exclusive contract with Seven Arts Productions.

'Gypsy' to Open Next Wednesday

The extraordinary strip-tease beauty who ushered in the golden age of burlesque is the lively subject of "Gypsy," the Warner Bros. motion picture musical in Technicolor and Technirama opening Wednesday at the Sky-Vue Drive-in Theatre.

Based on the long-run Broadway show, "Gypsy" is a lavishly-mounted recollection of the rise and reign of Gypsy Rose Lee, the noblest of all burlesque queens. Rosalind Russell, Natalie Wood and Karl Malden are starred in the Mervyn LeRoy Production.

Showing for the last four days, Anthony Quinn is starred in "Barabbas," filmed in color.

HOLLYWOOD by Hedda Hopper

Show's in 'The Looking' At Henry Luce's Party

NEW YORK — If there were any VIPs left in New York the night Jim Linen tossed a get-together for the celebrities gathered here to attend Henry Luce's party of the century, they had to take a cab. Every limousine in the city was busy shuttling the greats to Greenwich, Conn., where they dined on food prepared in a kitchen built for the occasion, danced to the music of two orchestras, and provided their own entertainment under five huge tents. As it is for movie fans at a Hollywood premiere, the show was in the looking. Cartoonist Al Capp surveyed the scene and said, "All these people seem so surprised at seeing so many other familiar faces."

Ginger Rogers never left tent number 1. When the music began, Gen. Mark Clark tapped her on the shoulder and said, "This one is mine." After their third whirl, he thanked her with, "Just wait until I tell my son I danced with Ginger Rogers!" She didn't sit down the entire evening. Every man there wanted to play Fred Astaire to Ginger — and did. "What it does for one's ego is beyond belief," she said. "Never had a better time in my life. And you know those fellows are better than any college boy I ever danced with."

When the Sid Jameses picked me up at the Waldorf, it was raining; but by the time we'd stopped en route to collect the Carter Burgeses, the skies had cleared. Jim Farley was in the line ahead of us as we entered the party. What a sight it was! Henry Wallace looking like a lost soul; Allen Dulles pulling on that old pipe of his; Richard Boone holding a reception of his own; Gov. William Scranton, of Pennsylvania, dancing with his wife (they looked like newlyweds); three of Linen's sons (the others were too young to stay up that late) collecting autographs from Gene Tunney.

A hundred people looked on as that wizard of the camera, Gjon Mili, photographed Gina Lollobrigida and Norman Thomas, a combination that would halt traffic anywhere. Gina was outfitted in a white dress with bugle bead trim from high neck to below the knees.

Gen. Carl Spaatz recalled a conversation we'd had in 1949 when I was riding Jim Duff's Pennsylvania special. Gen. James Doolittle told me it was high time Hollywood filmed the story of Gen. George S. Patton's life. Twentieth owns the rights and he thinks they should get on with it.

K. T. Keller entertained me with a story of how he made a car salesman out of Louis B. Mayer. In the days when Ida Koverman was Mayer's right hand at M-G-M, Keller, head of a big automobile company, decided everybody at the studio should be driving his product. Thru his good friend Ida, he got a date with Louis, had a special car made up, and parked it in a conspicuous place on the lot. When they went out for lunch, a crowd had gathered to look at the snazzy auto, "I've got to have one like this," said Mayer, whereupon he ordered a hundred for the company and sold another hundred to all his players.

Bette Davis, with daughter Barbara, laughing with tears in her eyes over her meeting with Casey Stengel, says the manager of the Mets talks exactly like Jimmy Durante. Bette's heading for the Cannes Film festival. Not me. I'm on my way to Paris... Had a wonderful talk with Donald David, former president of Harvard Business college. Ina Claire, with husband Bill Wallace, seemed surprised that David and I knew each other. "I don't know why I'm here," said Ina. "I was never a cover girl." "But you must have been," someone insisted. "Don't you think I'd remember that," said Ina.

'Fly With Me' Showing at Ute

Stars, romance and laughter, plus a close-up tour of Paris Left Bank night clubs and Vienna palaces are the ingredients of the happy romantic comedy, "Come Fly With Me," filmed in color and currently being featured in an exclusive engagement at the Ute Theatre.

A talent-packed cast of stars headed by Dolores Hart, Hugh O'Brian, returning to films after six years as TV's popular Wyatt Earp, Karl Boehm, Pamela Tiffin, Karl Malden and Lois Nettleton carry the liting and light-hearted story of three international airline hostesses and the men they meet on their flights from New York to far-flung places.

The adventures and misadventures of the assorted romantic twosomes involve both dramatic and amusing complications before each girl happily is able to resolve her romantic destiny.

'Dr. No' Current Chief Feature

"Dr. No," produced by Harry Saltzman and Albert Broccoli for United Artists, and is now showing at the Chief Theatre, is the first of the immensely popular adventure novels by the British author, Ian Fleming, to be brought to the screen.

Acquisition of motion picture rights to the Fleming novels involved payment against a highly competitive field of what was a record sum of money for Great Britain, and plans are now under way for subsequent Fleming features, also through United Artists release.

In Fleming's growing and enthusiastic army of readers is indicated by the fact that the movie edition of "Dr. No" will surpass any previous pocket-size first edition reprint in England, with Pan Books issuing a million copies, and will have a "first run" of four million Signet Book copies in the United States.

Starlite Sets Five-Film Show

The Starlite Drive-in Theatre will present a dusk-to-dawn movie-thon tonight. Five features will be shown.

The first feature is a story of terrorist gangs, "Rebel Girls." The second, "Call Me Bad," is a story of the waterfront girls. Michel Ray in "Space Children," Steve McQueen in "The Blob" and Tom Tyrone in "I Married A Monster" round out the program.

No extra admission is charged for the five features.

ASTRONAUT EXPERT — Peabody Award-winner Walter Cronkite, who has covered all five of the U.S. manned space flights for the CBS Television Network, will again be CBS News chief correspondent at Cape Canaveral when Astronaut L. Gordon Cooper attempts his 34-hour MA-9 mission to orbit the earth 23 2/3 times, scheduled for mid-May. In selecting Cronkite for the Peabody Award for Television News, the committee cited, in addition to his nightly news program, his outstanding 12-hour coverage of Astronaut Glenn's orbital flight.

'Mockingbird' Held Over at Ute

Because of the sensational business the first and second weeks of the engagement of "To Kill a Mockingbird," the management of the Ute Theatre has made arrangements to hold the feature for a third week, with the en-

'Spiral Road' Next at Aircadia

The renowned novel by Jan de Hartog, "The Spiral Road," a story of Dutch doctors in the jungles of the Netherlands East Indies, has been brought to the screen by Universal-International, with Rock Hudson, Burl Ives and Gena Rowlands in the starring roles, and opens Sunday at the Aircadia Drive-in Theatre.

The noted Dutch author's book, a brilliant appraisal of civilized man's struggle against the jungle, combining the jungle's brutal dangers with the constant battle of the human spirit against the lures of depravity and degradation, was partly filmed on location deep into the jungles of Surinam (Dutch Guiana), only four degrees north of the equator.

The second feature, "Papas Delicate Condition," stars Jackie Gleason and Glynis Johns.

gagement positively ending Tuesday.

"To Kill a Mockingbird" was first introduced to America and the world as a novel by Harper Lee, which won the Pulitzer Prize and since its transformation into a motion picture, has received equally high awards for the movie. Gregory Peck won the Academy Award as "best actor of the year" for his portrayal as Atticus, of the novel.

A number of youngsters, new to the screen, also share admiration from the audience for their warm roles, including Mary Badham, nominated as "best supporting actress," Phillip Alford and John Megna.

Italian Tenor Wins Honors At Carson

The 19 couples married at Ft. Carson in the past year have had musical background courtesy of a prize-winning Italian operatic tenor — Pfc. Anthony Bonaiuto from Cleveland, Ohio.

But the big voice from the choir loft came to the fore recently and won Ft. Carson and Fifth U.S. Army entertainment honors in the classical vocalist category.

The versatile tenor looks forward now to the All-Army contest at Ft. Lee, Va., late in June and the introduction to the big time that this Army contest has been to many talented soldiers in the past.

Bonaiuto's polished tones have been heard from Cleveland supper clubs to Carson Catholic services and in Colorado Springs entertainment spots. He toured two seasons with Ohio's Caffarelli Opera Company and has been heard in Colorado Springs with the Mario Singers of Aspen as a guest artist.

'Sundays, Cybele' At Broadmoor

"Sundays and Cybele," now showing at the Broadmoor Theatre, was given the Academy Award for the best foreign picture of the year.

"Sundays and Cybele" constitutes a new approach worthy of the closest attention being paid to a new young director, Serge Bourguignon, and his work which takes a courageous stand against the trends of today.

Wherever it plays, this black-and-white, modestly-produced motion picture runs off with whatever prizes are in the offing.

Bosley Crowther of The New York Times describes it as "a cinematic miracle," and like praise is echoed by critic and theatre-goer alike. At the Venice Festival the judges awarded it a Special Award for a first full-length film. The year before his "The Smile" won the top short subjects prize.

Starting Wednesday, Peter Sellers is starred in "The Wrong Arm of the Law."

8th Street Adds Extra Feature

The 8th Street Drive-in Theatre has added an extra feature to the regular program for tonight's showing only.

Kim Novak, James Garner and Tony Randall are starred in the first feature, "Boys Night Out." Jock Mahoney is starred in the new Tarzan film, "Tarzan Goes to India." The third and final feature, "Yellow Mountain," stars Lex Barker.

No extra admission is charged for the added feature.

NASSAU, Bahamas — Conch, A shell fish that has always formed an important part of the Bahamian Diet, is made into delicious chowders, fritters and salad. The shell is exported to Italy to be made into cameos.

Purex Corporation will sponsor 12 one-hour programs to be presented on consecutive weeks this summer over NBC-TV beginning June 27 with "The World of Bob Hope" and ending Sept. 12 with the late Gary Cooper's narration of "The Real West."

Eleven of the specials will be repeat performances of eight "The World of —" subjects and three Project 20 programs. The 12th special will be a first showing of an NBC News Actuality subject, "Voice of the Desert."

The summer specials, purchase of which was made by Purex' advertising agency, will maintain Purex' continuity on television from the company's final 1962-63 season special, "The Quiet Revolution" on May 24, until Purex begins sponsor ship in September of 20 half-hour entertainment specials to be produced by David L. Wolper Productions.

The summer specials will be aired over NBC-TV network every Thursday evening in the 10-11 p.m. time slot. "The World of —" subjects on Bob Hope, Jimmy Doolittle, Jacqueline Kennedy, Maurice Chevalier, Sophia Loren, Billy Graham, Darryl F. Zanuck and Benny Goodman will occupy the first eight weeks, followed by "Voice of the Desert" and three Project 20 programs, "The Story of Will Rogers," "The Circus" with Emmett Kelly and "The Real West" with Gary Cooper.

Irish to Tour

NEW YORK (AP)—The sons of Erin are finally getting into the concert tour business.

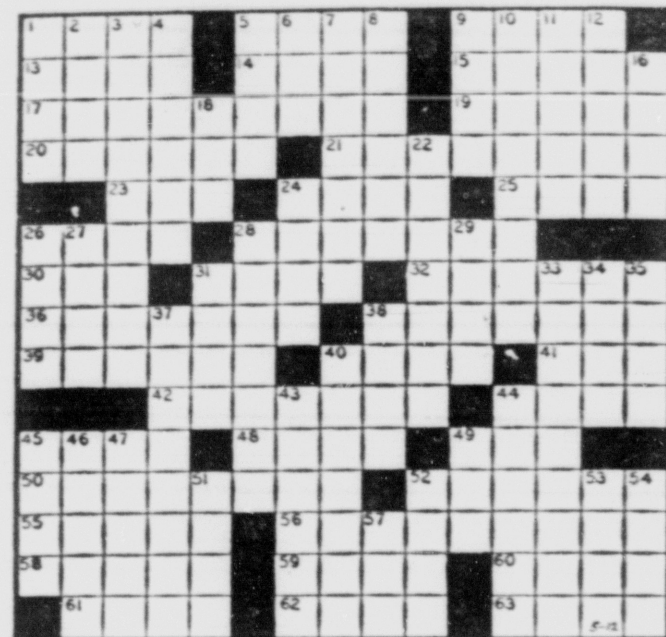

After five years of negotiations with Erie's Wing of Justice, the Irish Police Band, featuring pipers and fancy drill formations, has been booked for a coast to coast tour in the fall of 1964.

For the past several seasons, band concert bookings have been monopolized by kilned contingents from Scotland. Canadian as well as U.S. cities are on the agenda.

KHARTOUM — Voice communications are now used at all of the Sudanese airports.

Elsa Shows Her Claws In 'Celebrity Circus'

THE CELEBRITY CIRCUS — Elsa Maxwell, in her book by that title, published by Appleton Century at $4.95, admits that the one ingredient necessary for "celebrity" is "novelty."

Which confirms the Hollywood adage that any kind of publicity, or novelty, is good, provided it is publicity.

Elsa Maxwell, of course, belongs to that world of professional party-givers for the "right" celebrities, or those who have the newest novelties, etc. Elsa herself has been a tireless performer in this circus, always coming up with something novel, in her own way of thinking, at any rate. She never has minded dressing up in grotesque, clownish costumes, and once hired Fritz Kreisler to play at one of her parties.

She explains: "Without novelty the celebrity circus folds."

The matter of "celebrities" in itself, however, reflects the proletarianization of what used to be known as "society," in its various aspects. Her present book delves into such subjects as international society, social climbers, the right and wrong resorts in the right and wrong seasons, etc.

What may rescue this book from boredom is that she lets her deadly claws show now and then, showing that she, after all, human, in a manner of speaking. But the other side of her humanity is perhaps a sardonic one, since she considers herself as a trouper in the sawdust of modern celebrity "society."

THE TWO OCEAN WAR — By Samuel Eliot Morison — Atlantic-Little, Brown—$15—a good price for a massive volume by the Harvard professor, who talked FDR into letting him "go to war" to gather "history on the spot."

Although the argument of gathering history on the spot seems to be quite fallacious — since in no instance can it provide the overall view of the historian, still Morison is the recognized authority on U.S. naval history, but surely not simply because he served on half a dozen cruisers and two battlewagons. His reputation is firmly based, instead, on his 15-volume "History of U.S. Naval Operations."

His present book describes in detail the Navy's prosecution of a two-front war from Pearl Harbor to surrender in Tokyo Bay, with many statistics, suitable as a permanent reference work for Navy buffs.

RUMBLE SLEPT AND RIGHT — By William F. Buckley — Putnam — $4.95 — Buckley's latest book deals mostly with people on the political left and right who have made and are making news, and, of course, Buckley himself in the first place, since he considers that he, in his battle against the left, is making news, such as for instance his battle with Jack Paar, of which he seems to make a great deal in this book, which actually is a compilation of various articles and essays.

Russell Kirk wrote the introduction, saying: "Here is social criticism worthy of survival in its own right." It becomes fairly clear, thruout the volume, that Buckley is quite in accord with Kirk on this point, seemingly as he is intoxicated, if one may use that expression, with a sense of exhilaration sometimes, one suspects, more about the battle, than about the end result.

Buckley as a right winger, of course, has carved himself quite a niche, but one has the impression that his, and Kirk's views as to what makes news is at times highly personal, such as the publisher's statement that: "If the people about whom he (Buckley) writes hadn't made news, they made it the moment they attracted Mr. Buckley's bright attention."

Which defines Buckley as a news maker.

Time magazine is quoted as having called Buckley "the paladin of the American right." Buckley, of course, made his first big splash with "God and Man at Yale" and then "Up From Liberalism."

A curious comment is made by the UPI reviewer of Buckley's book, pointing out that "in fact, Buckley's opinions, at least as represented by this book, may be unpopular but they are scarcely reactionary."

In the present collection of bits and tidbits, Buckley rips into lawyer Edward Bennett Williams, teases Richard Rovere to "come clean" on the "Establishment," analyzes the "non-think" behind President Eisenhower's invitation to Khrushchev; explains his admiration for Goldwater, and has other essays on Jack Paar, Murray Kempton, Kenneth Tynan and Robert Hutchins.

For some reason, perhaps to show Buckley while he relaxes, are his thoughts about the threat to the amateur in sailing.

Bright Young Men seem to be brightest when they pursue a subject to its logical conclusion. Compiled "essays," in actuality magazine articles or transcripts of talks and debates, do not seem to contribute much as far as issues are concerned, since they deal mostly with personalities.

And, to use a quotation by Norman Mailer about Buckley's "logical, lovely and lucid style" is a rather odd kind of recommendation, on the back of the book jacket.

Park Avenue's Career: Farm Girl to Grand Lady

In the midst of New York, America's most changing city, the old-world grandeur of Park Avenue has all but disappeared. In its place has come an array of steel, bronze and glass towers as gleaming in their modernity as their predecessors were subdued in Victorian and Renaissance styles.

The newest of these structures, although modern in concept while retaining the grandeur of the Old World, has risen on the Northwest corner of Park Avenue and 61st Street. It is the Regency, a 22-story, 500-room luxury hotel with a facade of modern muted-beige stone and an interior decorated in the elegant, transitional phase French Regence period. It opened Friday, March 1.

Just a century ago, Park Avenue was a sprawling slum where squatters lived in indescribable filth in makeshift wooden shanties among the goat and cattle herds. This swampy country was so far away from the center of old New York that some chroniclers of the era called the isolated section "The end of the world."

Measured in the span of nearly 200 years since the Common Council first surveyed the Murray Hill region, the transition, in stages, of this fabulous piece of real estate has been slow. Its humble beginning can be traced back to 1636 when the early Dutch settlers struggled in the wilderness or gray, ragged rocks near a creek called Monatyne Fonteyn, later known as Benson's Creek.

The area's "society" lineage is said to have begun with Jacob Kip, a Dutch burgher who built the first home of social status on the east side in 1653. This area has retained the name of Kips Bay even to today.

For the next 100 years there was little progress. But in 1763 James Beckman built a large house in the area, in the English Royal manner. And just before the Revolutionary War the ship owner Robert Murray erected his mansion at what is now Park Avenue and 37th Street.

The modern history of Park Avenue is written in its real estate — and the railroad. Beginning with the laying of the New York & Harlem Railroad's first tracks in 1843, this once-deserted hunting ground slowly began to come to life.

The dawn of Park Avenue building came in the late 1850s when breweries, piano factories, warehouses and express companies were erected there because the land was cheap and near a railroad and there was no zoning regulation at the time. The F & M Schaefer Brewing Company put up its plant in 1857 on the east side of Park Avenue, somewhere between 48th and 50th Streets. Two blocks north stood the Steinway Piano Company which was built in 1861.

The brewery's plot gave way through the years to a railroad YMCA and eventually to St. Bartholomew's Protestant Episcopal Church and the 47-story Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The old Steinway site later housed the fabulous Montana apartment building, 13 stories of Italian Renaissance with a $6,000 yearly rental tab.

The earlier Grand Central depot was erected in 1871 at the same time as the 5-story Grand Union Hotel which ran along the West Side of Park Avenue from 41st and 42nd Streets. This hostelry of "over 450 elegantly furnished rooms at $1 and upwards per day" was fitted up at an expense of one million dollars.

In 1884 The Murray Hill Hotel rose eight stories on the Southwest corner of 40th Street. It featured red and white marble floors, plush lounges, gilt-framed mirrors and rococo walls and ceilings. It was a home away from home for such notables as Presidents Cleveland and McKinley, Jay Gould and "Diamond Jim" Brady.

Some of these were also guests in the Victorian splendor of private dwellings rising on either side of the avenue. By 1912 the tracks of the railroad were completely covered over. With the disappearance of noisy traffic and the smoke of the steam locomotives, New York's socially prominent set began migrating to Park Avenue.

By World War I, society's "400" had a firm foothold in the fast rising, palatial apartment houses. The avenue was acquiring a new reputation as the city's most desirable location. The residential concentration of wealth was approached by no other street in the city for half a century.

The depression, of course, halted construction along the avenue and land values dropped. The thoroughfare retained its dignity, however, and in 1947 Park Avenue began to make a comeback.

Cook's Best Friend

Searching for a vegetable to accompany the meat course that will be delicious, vitamin-packed and colorful all at the same time? Culinary experts at Air France, the airline noted for its gourmet cuisine, say your best ally in the kitchen is your own imagination.

An example: Scoop out half a tomato and fill it with cooked, fresh chopped spinach, warm it in the oven and serve with creamy hollandaise sauce topped with a dash of fresh parsley and paprika. Try other combinations, but keep in mind flavors which complement each other and have color and eye-appeal, too.

'How to Succeed' to Play In Denver May 27-June 8

"How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying", the newly formed National Company of the celebrated Frank Loesser-Abe Burrows musical comedy, plays in Denver May 27 thru June 8 on its first transcontinental tour. This is the musical satire on big business, which has convulsed Broadway for a year and a half (opened Oct. 14, 1961) with never an empty seat; which won the coveted 1962 Pulitzer Prize (Best Play), the New York Drama Critics' Circle Award (Best Musical) and seven "Tony" Awards (the legitimate theatre's equivalent to Hollywood's "Oscars") — named after Antoinette Perry, founder, The American Theatre Wing).

"How to Succeed....." comes to the Auditorium Theatre for two weeks only, May 27 thru June 8. Evenings, including Sunday, June 2, (no performance Monday, June 3) are at 8:30 p.m.; matinees on Thursday, May 30, Sunday, June 2, and Saturdays, June 1 and 8, are at 2:30 p.m. Mail orders are now being filled prior to the opening of the box office on May 13. For the first three evening performances and the first Saturday matinee here, the musical hit is a Theatre Guild-ATS subscription attraction.

Based on Shepherd Mead's best-seller of the same title, "How to Succeed..." recounts the hilariously rapid rise of J. Pierpont Finch, from window washer of World Wide Wickets, Inc., to chairman of its board of directors. Finch is one part Horatio Alger, one part What Makes Sammy Run, one part Jack Lemmon in the movie "The Apartment". But he is more than all these: he is the sweet smell of success that rises in the corporate structure through some sort of alchemy that is a mixture of irrespressible guttiness and irresistible personality: no talent, just personality and luck. Finch is acted by rising young star Dick Kallman, his boss by Willard Waterman.

"How to Succeed..." is produced by Feuer & Martin, who have given the American musical theatre

Rex Allen Narrates For Disney

Rex Allen, well-known to Pikes Peak Region residents as star entertainer at the Pikes Peak or Bust Rodeo, narrates a new Walt Disney nature-adventure picture, "Yellowstone Cubs."

The offbeat adventures of two little bear cubs, Tuffy and Tubby, as narrated by Rex Allen in the picture, are as funny as any nature story Disney has done.

Rex's familiar western dialect and deep resonant voice belong to the west — and to Disney pictures. Allen was narrator on "Arizona Sheepdog," "The Wetback Hound," "The Horse of the West," "Windwagon Smith," "The Hound That Thought He Was A Raccoon," "Chico, The Misunderstood Coyote," "Sancho, The Homing Steer," and "The Legend of Lobo."

Rex Allen was born and raised in Arizona's rugged mesa country, where he rode a horse before he could walk, and where he earned his spurs busting brones and branding cattle before turning 15.

He is a cowboy's cowboy — a range-riding vocalist with a genuine western background that has combined with an inherent showmanship, which makes him a most accomplished performer.

He first reached radio stardom with his voice and musicianship via Chicago's station WLS in 1944, but considerable time passed before he gained wide popularity with his nightclub engagements and radio programs elsewhere.

Discovered for "Arizona Cowboy" by Republic Pictures in 1948, he set a blistering pace of western film-making, completing 31 feature films before entering the television field in "Frontier Doctor."

Allen has traveled more than 300,000 miles on personal appearance tours, fairs, rodeos, community celebrations and nightclub stands. He credits these excursions with increasing his countrywide popularity with fans.

Known as the "Voice of the West," he has elevated the folk song and ballad to its rightful berth among the top art forms. Rex and his famous mount — Koko, the Most Beautiful horse in America — have become synonymous with the west.

Allen lives with his wife Bonnie, his sons Rex, Jr. 16, and Mark, 8, his daughter, Curtis Lee, 13, on their ranch in California's San Fernando Valley.

The awards were instituted by NAB's Radio Board of directors as an added feature of the annual Radio Month observance that commemorates radio's many and varied contributions to the American way of life. Selection of the recipients was made by a special committee headed by Ben Strouse, president of WWDC (AM-FM), Washington, D.C., and chairman of NAB's Radio Board.

Special NAB plaques will be presented to each at a time and place to be announced later.

The four recipients are all prominent personalities in radio

ARTS CHRONICLE by John Fetter

Canon City Art Show Praised by Reviewer

CANON CITY ART — Mrs. George C. Christie of Canon City has arranged for Robert Hench, art supervisor at Florence Colo., to write a review of the Canon City Blossom Festival art show, which remain open thru May 18. Herewith we present Mr. Hench's review: — (J.F.)

By ROBERT HENCH

"Canon City Blossom Day Art Exhibits are always a distinct civic and artistic achievement and the Sixteenth Annual Exhibit which opened April 27 at the Canon City Fine Arts Center is an impressive show by any standards. Generally speaking, exhibitions have a way of falling into categories, and this year the Blossom Festival Exhibit is characterized by an exciting, uniformly high degree of quality. A first tour of the gallery, for example, fails to reveal pay work that is mediocre and it is only after a period of time has elapsed that one becomes aware of preferences and even these are primarily matters of personal taste.

"Visiting the Blossom Festival Exhibit this year is an extremely pleasant and rewarding experience and, inevitably, one lingers as the eye is drawn to a captivating water color or piece of abstract sculpture. A great variety of styles and technique make the show enjoyable and an exceptionally fine, print, which was awarded a purchase prize, along with a delightful small bronze come immediately to mind.

"The works on display are predominately abstract and reflect current trends generally prevalent in this country and abroad. Abstract painting today, of course, ART SCHRONICLE retains its characteristic vigor and it becomes increasingly difficult to find first-rate painters who deal with representational themes.

"Visitors to the gallery will undoubtedly feel that it is the oil paintings that make this the major show that it is. Three abstractions that hang on the east wall are particularly rewarding and deserving of comment. These suggest nature and do it equally well, although in different techniques. One is by Marian DeNoya who takes a close view; a diffused stir of blues, greens, and yellows applied with a palette knife trembles with the beat of close vegetation.

"Bette Havens, in another of the nature abstractions, probes blue space with a lyrical brush to create "April: Evening" and W. T. Trott makes a fascinating comment on trees that makes one wonder, somehow, if real trees aren't an abstraction.

"Two excellent collages come as a surprise as one wanders thru the exhibit. Appearing in the midst of the oils and water colors each gains a certain intensity. Cecil Carter has a deft touch with paper scraps which he places on a black background, and Rod Repligle works with layers of pasteboard which are glued to mustard-green canvas and outlined heavily with tar. As might be surmised, the representational paintings are a welcome counterpoint, and contribute toward the interest of this show. Lura Atanasoff makes a warm and personal statement regarding sunflowers, and Vincent O'Brien succeeds in turning auto racing into a psychological form of social commentary. His painting is somehow noisy and is experienced in terms of sound rather than being visual.

"Rounding out the show are several watercolors and pieces of sculpture with Ed Sajbel and Ann Dignan making noteworthy contributions. Sara Uffelman and John Mendoza add a friendly, familiar touch.

"The Sixteenth Annual Blossom Festival Exhibit compares favorably with art exhibits throughout the country. That is occurs entirely thru the effort of volunteer workers in, indeed, commendable."

GAMER ANTHEM PUBLISHED

An anthem composed by Prof. Carlton Gamer for the dedication of Olin Hall of Science at Colorado College, has just been published by the college's Music Press.

The Music Press, founded in 1965, with this work has published its 17th musical publication. It is the third contemporary work published by the press which specializes in Renaissance choral masterworks.

The anthem is entitled "Laudate Dominum." Lyrics are from Psalm 116 of the Latin Bible. It was performed at the college under direction of Donald Jenkins. Gamer's works have been performed here, in New York, Boston and Chicago.

The Colorado College Music Press is under the direction of Prof. Albert Seay, and is one of the two non-commercial college music presses in the country, the other being at Smith College.

PASADENA PLAYHOUSE

Oliver B. Prickett has been appointed new head of all operations of the Pasadena Playhouse as general manager. He has been at the Playhouse over 20 years as actor, director, production co-ordinator and publicity director. The Playhouse also has announced plans for four full tuition scholarships to drama students "showing the highest degree of aptitude and promise for a theatrical career." The Playhouse also runs a television workshop. Inquiries should be address to the Dean of Admissions, Pasadena Playhouse, 39 S. El Molino Ave., Pasadena, Calif.

SCULPTURE BOUGHT — The University of Nebraska puts many another school in the shade, with the announcement that three major pieces of sculpture have been acquired for permanent installation in the Great Hall of the Sheldon Memorial art gallery in Lincoln, Neb.

The sculptures are: Princess 'x, a 22-inch figure in white marble by Brancusi; Bather, a seven-foot bronze by Lipchitz; and Song of the Bird, and two-piece composition in Greek and Swedish Marble by Noguchi.

The Brancusi, of course, is considered the single most valuable work. It was purchased by Mrs. A. N. Sheldon as a memorial to her husband. The other two were purchased from the estate of the donors of the gallery, A. Bromley Shelton, and his sister Frances, as memorials to them. Norman Geski is director of the gallery.

When You Find a Whale, It's a Whale of a Fix

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP) — Finding a whale on the beach is a whale of a problem that scientists seek to solve.

The very rare things that are turning up now on the beaches often are lost to science because the finders don't know how to handle them," said Dr. Joseph C. Moore, curator of mammals at the Chicago Natural History Museum.

Moore is chairman of the committee of Marine Mammals of the American Society of Mammologists.

The society is sponsoring an organized search for derelict whales washed ashore.

Its team of a dozen scientists has organized a coastal spy system ranging from arctic seas to gulf waters. They have enlisted laymen to keep sharp eyes alert for stranded whales or whale-like creatures.

The aim is to get accurate reports on unusual discoveries for identification and scientific analysis.

Moore advises a person finding a whale of anything resembling a whale to get in touch with the nearest scientist by telephone. Meanwhile he should make photographs and measurements.

"The main thing is to identify the critter," Moore said. "If we can identify it we would know if it is a specimen worth saving."

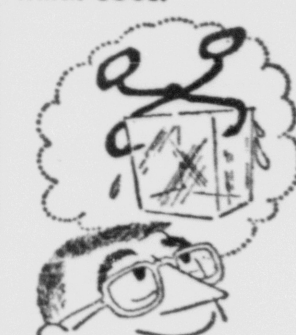

The scientist seek data on reproduction, food habits and parasitism among members of the whale family. Data and measurements are recorded on a standardized form, designed to aid zoologists who have had little or no previous experience with marine mammals such as whales, dolphins and porpoises.

Altho a finder may not know a right whale from a wrong one, if he finds a stranded male whale, a measurement of the elongated tusk is in order.

Pumps Propel all Powerboats

PART FIVE

By JIM MARTENHOFF

Boating Editor, Miami Herald

All powerboats, outboards included, are propelled by pumps. That's what a propeller really is—a pump. It moves water, exerting a thrusting force that in turn moves the boat.

When a propeller is improperly matched to engine and load, it doesn't move water efficiently. Poor performance results.

Getting the most out of a prop begins with understanding its diameter and pitch. Diameter is simply the size of the propeller, measured as if it were a wheel; pitch is the distance a prop would move if turned one revolution in a solid medium (like a wood screw thru wood), assuming it didn't slip.

Diameter and pitch are usually stamped on the prop hub. Both are always expressed in inches, diameter first. A "10x12" prop is 10 inches in diameter and has a 12-inch pitch. Theoretically it would move a boat one foot for every revolution; if the shaft turned 5,280 times per minute the theoretical speed is that many feet per minute or 60 miles an hour.

SLIPPAGE IS TIME KEY

But propellers aren't screws. They're pumps and they slip. Here's why, and how it affects performance.

Pitch is like the gearing in an auto. High pitch increases boat speed, just as an auto is fastest in high gear. But too much pitch for the load means the engine must strain, as an auto engine labors to push up a steep hill in high gear. With too much pitch, engine revolutions per minute (rpm's) are cut down. You notice it when a boat struggles to pull skiers up, or strains to rise on plane.

It's a sign you're climbing a watery hill; a hint to "downshift" to a lower pitch.

At the other extreme, too low a pitch permits the outboard engine to exceed maximum rated rpm's at full throttle. At best, propeller slippage is very high, fuel is wasted, speed is low; at worst, excessive slippage or engine rpm's means it's time to switch to a higher pitch.

LOW PITCH MEANS LOW GEAR

You use high pitch for speed with light loads, low pitch for power with heavier loads. Decreasing diameter saves decreasing pitch. Example: You feel a 10x12 prop should be replaced, say by a 10x10. But a 9x11 inch prop may work just as well, saving some speed.

Tachometers, which measure engine rpm's, are the best guide to propeller selection. Many dealers have portable tachs for use in matching props. Even without a tach, it's relatively easy to spot poor performance stemming from high pitch but it's harder to detect when pitch is low. One clue is excessive slippage. As a rough rule, anything higher than about 25 per cent slippage suggests a prop change may be in order.

To find theoretical speed and slippage, take your rpm's and divide by 100; your pitch and divide by ten, then multiply. Example: 4,000 rpm's divided by 100 is 40; 14-inch pitch divided by ten is 1.4; 40 multiplied by 1.4 equals 56—approximately your theoretical speed.

If you are only getting 28 miles per hour, you have 50 per cent slippage—too much. Go to a higher pitch.

Always carry a spare propeller. Not only is it like a "spare tire" in case of an accidentally broken prop, but it is also, if a different pitch, a means of "shifting gears" for better performance.

The outboarder who wants his boat to perform properly must understand the importance of trim.

Trim merely means the proper distribution of weight. But there is more to it than simply pushing iceboxes and gas cans around so the boat floats reasonably level in the water.

For example, too much weight in the stern causes both good and bad effects. It makes the stern ride lower in the water, lifts part of the bow higher, reduces the amount of wetted surface water friction—and lets the boat go a mile or three faster.

But too much weight aft also exposes more of that flat bottom of a planing hull to oncoming wave faces, so it will increase pounding if the water turns choppy. In extreme cases, too much weight aft will make the boat "proprize," leapfrogging even on glass-calm water, the bow rising and falling rhythmically. It may look pretty, but it isn't good practice.

WHAT WEIGHT FORWARD DOES

Weight placed forward also changes the small powerboat's performance. It lowers the bow, increasing wetted surface and slowing the boat—but it will also lessen pounding in a chop. With weight forward, the small boat will go to weather well, holding her bow into the wind. And with weight forward, the outboard won't porpoise. But if you turn and run before small seas on lake or bay, weight forward becomes a handicap; that heavy bow now digs into waves, and the lighter stern tries to slew around it—an action termed "yawing."

So you should trim your little ship to suit wind, water and course conditions. For example, you may start out on calm waters stirred only by a gentle breeze. Move weight aft, and you'll get a few extra miles per hour (move too much weight aft and the boat will begin porpoising). When the wind increases and the water becomes choppy, move weight forward to control pounding. The boat is slower, but rides more smoothly.

Turn and run somewhat more slowly before following seas. If you note a tendency to yaw, move weight aft again to control it.

MOTOR CAN HELP TRIM

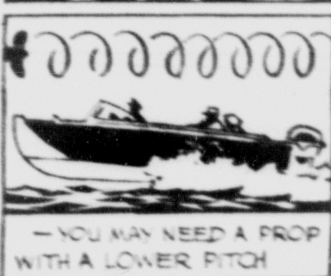

Trimming an outboard is easy because you can also use the motor tilt angle. When you tilt the lower unit inward, toward the boat, it is the same as moving weight forward; it lowers the bow. Tilt the engine's lower unit outward, away from the hull, and it will raise the bow, give you added speed.

Learn to use both weight and motor tilt adjustments for proper trim and better performance. Remember that the size of the boat is important; trimming properly is vital on light, 14 to 16 foot outboards, less important on 18 and 20 foot craft. The knowledgeable boatman knows how to "trim ship" for optimum performance. Often, proper trim will make a misbehaving boat into a lady.

All it takes is a little know-how. You just have to "know how" to throw your weight around.

Next: How to save fuel.

Conrad in Movie

Hollywood — Robert Conrad, who has been starring as a private investigator in Warner Bros.' "Hawaiian Eye" TV show for ABC the past four years, has been cast for his first motion picture, "Palm Springs Weekend." He'll play an unsympathetic role.

HEAD START

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Lilli Palmer, who stars in the Walt Disney production, "Miracle of The White Stallions," started her acting career standing on her head.

That was at the Rose Theater in Berlin in a play called "Die Eiserne Jungfrau" (The Iron Maiden). Lilli was born Maria Lilli Peiser in Posen, Germany. She and her sister, Irene, changed their name to Palmer when they moved to Paris.

Accidents resulting in non-fatal injuries occur to about a third of the farm population each year.
